

Negation

GEOFFREY K. PULLUM
RODNEY HUDDLESTON

- 1 Introduction 786
 - 1.1 Tests for clause polarity 786
 - 1.2 An overview of negation types 787
 - 1.3 Scope and focus of negation 790
 - 1.3.1 The concept ‘having scope over’ 790
 - 1.3.2 Relative scope: wide scope negation and narrow scope negation 792
 - 1.3.3 Focus 796
- 2 Verbal negation 799
 - 2.1 Primary verbal negation 799
 - 2.2 Imperative negation 802
 - 2.3 Secondary verbal negation 803
 - 2.3.1 Formal marking of secondary negation 803
 - 2.3.2 Secondary negation with not following an auxiliary verb 803
- 3 Non-verbal negation 806
 - 3.1 Not as a marker of non-verbal negation 807
 - 3.2 The synthetic absolute negators 812
 - 3.2.1 Clausal negation 812
 - 3.2.2 Subclausal negation 815
 - 3.3 The approximate negators 815
 - 3.4 Affixal negation in relation to verbal negation 821
- 4 Polarity-sensitive items 822
 - 4.1 Negatively-oriented polarity-sensitive items (NPIs) 823
 - 4.1.1 NPIs vs negative idioms 824
 - 4.1.2 Variation in the strength of the negative orientation 825
 - 4.2 Positively-oriented polarity-sensitive items (PPIs) 829
 - 4.3 Correspondences between PPIs, NPIs, and negators 831
 - 4.4 Non-affirmative contexts 834
- 5 Increased specificity of negation (I don’t want to hear about it) 838
- 6 Multiple negation 843
 - 6.1 Multiple semantic negation within a single clause 844
 - 6.2 Negative concord and pleonastic negation 845
- 7 Positive and negative polarity in responses and anaphora 847
 - 7.1 Answers to polar questions and comparable responses 847
 - 7.2 Anaphoric so and not 849