Aims and Scope

Economics and Philosophy is a semi-annual journal designed to foster collaboration between economists and philosophers and to bridge the increasingly artificial disciplinary boundaries that divide them. Economists more and more acknowledge that their work in both positive and normative economics depends on methodological and ethical commitments that demand philosophical study and justification. Philosophers increasingly insist that philosophy of science must be informed by and tested against studies of current science and of its history, while ethics and political philosophy must depend on what we know about human aims and interests and about the principles, benefits, and drawbacks of different forms of social organization.

Papers in Economics and Philosophy will explore the foundations of economics as both a predictive/explanatory enterprise and a normative one and will examine the relevance of economic techniques, methods and conclusions to philosophical questions in ethics and social theory.
