B

Listen to an advisor at the Continuing Education Center. Write two things you can learn in each course.

Photography

Advisor: Are you interested in photography?

Woman: Yes, I am.

Advisor: Well, we have an excellent course on creative photography.

Woman: That could be helpful.

Advisor: Yes. It's designed for people with a good working knowledge of photography, but who want to improve their skills through working with an expert photographer.

Woman: What does the course cover?

Advisor: Everything you need to know to improve both your portrait and landscape photography.

Woman: Hmm. So how long is the course?

Advisor: There are ten sessions of two hours each, spread over five weeks.

Web-page design

Advisor: Our course on web-page design is very popular. In this course, you learn what makes an effective web page.

Man: That sounds useful. How does the instructor teach the course?

Advisor: Well, mainly you learn what goes into a successful web page and how to use your web page for different purposes. There are practical lessons on things like creating, designing, and editing your own web page.

Man: That sounds interesting. How long is the course?

Advisor: It's only 15 hours spread over three weeks, and it requires no experience with web design.
