The Scott Polar Research Institute

is pleased to announce

The Shackleton Memorial Library Appeal

The Scott Polar Research Institute's library and database are recognised as parts of the world's premier Polar Information Centre. As an unparalleled resource of outstanding national and international importance, it is consulted by governments, industry, and scholars.

As the demand on these facilities increases, a new extension is required, not only to provide much-needed space, but to allow on-site computer links. This new library will be named the Shackleton Memorial Library in honour of the contributions made to polar research by Sir Ernest Shackleton and his son, Lord Shackleton.

The Institute is keen to foster the widest relationships with individuals, other institutions, and corporations that have an interest in the polar regions.

Anyone wishing further information should contact:
