63527-6 Paperback about $17.95

British Consciousness and Identity

The Making of Britain, 1533-1707

Brendan Bradshaw and Peter Roberts, Editors

This collection contributes to the development of the "new British history," which seeks to explore in a comparative framework the history of the national entities that constitute the two islands of the Atlantic Archipelago.

Contributors: Peter Roberts, Brendan Bradshaw, Marc Caball, Andrew Hadfield, Willy Maley, Alan Ford, Philip Jenkins, Keith M. Brown, Jane Dawson, Jim Smyth, Colin Kidd
43383-5 Hardback $69.95

Children, Childhood and English Society, 1880-1990

Harry Hendrick

This book is intended to be a guide to the burgeoning literature on the history of childhood. It provides a reliable account of the evolution of some of the most important developments in adult-child relations during the past one hundred years.

57253-3 Hardback $44.95
57624-5 Paperback $12.95

Early Modern Liberalism

Annabel Patterson

While the term "liberalism" was not applied to political thought or political parties in England until the late 18th-century, the author argues that its central ideas were formulated by 17th-century English writers in defiance of their society's norms, and then transmitted to the American colonies.

59260-7 Hardback $49.95

Strikes and Solidarity

Coalfield Conflict in Britain, 1889-1966

Roy Church and Quentin Outram

This book investigates the history of strike activity in the British coal mining industry, a byword for industrial militancy since the late nineteenth century. Its multidisciplinary approach blends quantitative and qualitative research methods.

55460-8 Hardback $69.95

The Wars of the Roses
Politics and the Constitution in England, c. 1437-1509

Christine Carpenter

This book attempts to explain why the Wars of the Roses occurred, and with what results, by placing them in the context of the ruling classes' expectations of kingship and governance at that time.

26800-1 Hardback $59.95
31874-2 Paperback $19.95

Sport, Economy and Society in Britain,
1750-1914

Neil Tranter

Tranter provides a concise, up-to-date survey of a dramatic change in the cultural life of Victorian and Edwardian Britain: the radical transformation in the extent and nature of Britain's involvement in sports.

57655-5 Paperback $12.95

Controlling Misbehavior in England, 1370-1600

Marjorie Keniston McIntosh

Through an examination of 255 places in England, McIntosh argues against the suggestion that social regulation was a distinctive feature of the decades around 1600, and demonstrates that concern with wrongdoing mounted gradually between 1370 and 1600.

Industrial Policy in Britain 1945-1951

Economic Planning,
Nationalisation and the Labour
Governments

Martin Chick

This detailed archive-based study examines the economic planning of the Attlee governments in Britain in the period 1945-1951. It discusses the workings of economic planning and its effects on business decision making.

Understanding Decline

Perceptions and Realities of British Economic Performance

Peter Clarke and Clive Trebilcock, Editors

This volume includes case studies through which the reality of decline can be explored.

Contributors: Peter Clarke, Clive Trebilcock, Barry Supple, Donald Winch, Patrick K. O'Brien, Simon Szreter, Jay Winter, José Harris, Bernard Alford, Charles H. Feinstein, Tony Hopkins, David Cannadine, Peter Temin

56317-8 Hardback $64.95

The Solidarities of Strangers

The English Poor Laws and the People, 1700-1948

Lynn Hollen Lees

This study combines individual stories with official actions. Lees shows how clients as well as officials negotiated welfare settlements—cultural definitions of entitlement, rather than available resources, determined amounts and beneficiaries.

57261-4 Hardback $64.95

The English Reformation and the Laity

Gloucestershire, 1540-1580

Caroline Litzenberger

This book tells the story of the English Reformation from the viewpoint of ordinary people and their parishes. It shows that while some individuals and parishes may have welcomed the new religion, people generally resisted change and then gradually created their own idiosyncratic sets of beliefs and practices.

47545-7 Hardback $54.95

King James VI and I and the Reunion of Christendom

W.B. Patterson

This is a historical study of the career of King James VI and I, as king of Scotland (1567-1625) and England (1603-1625), who achieved a union of the crowns as the first king of Great Britain, and who undertook to end the recurring religious wars.

41805-4 Hardback $59.95

A History of the University of Cambridge Volume 3: 1750-1870

Peter Searby

This volume describes the structure, constitution and curricula of the University of Cambridge and the part it played in the political life of Britain. For most of this period the University functioned largely as a seminary for the Church of England, and much attention is paid to the religious views of its members.

Britain via Chicago

King Khama, Emperor Joe, and the Great White Queen

Victorian Britain through African Eyes

Neil Parsons

In 1895 three African chiefs began a tour of the British Isles which foiled Cecil Rhodes' grand plan for Africa and indirectly led to the independence of present-day Botswana. Historian Neil Parsons has reconstructed this bizarre journey of exploration, providing a view from the other side of colonialism and imperialism with the richness and depth of a fully realized novel.

"This engaging work is based on extraordinary archival materials, here worked through by means of first-rate historical scholarship. The book is a classic account of those reported occasions during the long history of Western colonial expansion when the colonial 'Other' and the colonizer's home society mutually encountered and experienced one another, fully within the latter's context."—George E. Marcus, coauthor of Anthropology as Cultural Critique

Charting an Empire

Geography at the English Universities 1580-1620

Lesley B. Cormack

"Charting an Empire is an important contribution to our knowledge of early modern English imperialism: it reveals the extent to which this bold act of geopolitical imagination was enabled by geographical education. In the process it offers an indispensable map of the geographical disciplines, and the first detailed picture of how, where, and by whom they were studied."—William H. Sherman, University of Maryland

THE ENGLISH HISTORICAL REVIEW

First published in 1886, The English Historical Review is the oldest journal of historical scholarship in the English-speaking world. It deals not only with British history, but with almost all aspects of European and world history since the classical era: it covers the history of the Americas, including the foreign policy of the USA and her role in the wider world, but excludes the domestic history of the USA since Independence, for which other scholarly outlets are plentiful.

The Journal of Modern History

Founded in 1929, the Journal of Modern History is recognized as the leading American journal for the study of European intellectual, political, and cultural history. The journal's geographical and temporal sweep—the history of Europe, including Russia and the Balkans, since the Renaissance—makes it unique in its field. The JMH provides the latest research on events and movements in specific countries and current investigations on broader themes that transcend particular times and places.
