General Hospital Psychiatry is directed towards those members of the health care team who find themselves at the demanding junction of psychiatry, medicine, and primary care: psychiatrists, general and family practitioners, internists, nurses, pharmacologists, psychologists, and health care paraprofessionals.

General Hospital Psychiatry publishes original research covering such areas as consultation-liaison psychiatry, neuropsychiatry, pharmacopsychiatry, geropsychiatry, alcohol and substance abuse, law and ethics, the relationship of psychiatric services to general medical systems, and new directions in medical education that stress psychiatry's role in primary care and family practice. Emphasizing a biopsychosocial approach to illness and health, this leading bimonthly is a critical resource for professionals in in-patient, ambulatory, and community settings. In addition to original articles the journal also features Brief Communications, News and Notes, Book Reviews, and Liaison Rounds.
