Aims and scope

The Economic and Labour Relations Review aims to bring together double-blind, peer-reviewed research in economics and labour relations in a multi-disciplinary approach to policy questions. The journal encourages articles that critically assess dominant orthodoxies, as well as alternative models, thereby facilitating informed debate. The journal particularly encourages articles that adopt a post-Keynesian (heterodox) approach to economics, or that explore rights-, equality- or justice-based approaches to labour relations and social policy.

Topics covered by the journal include:

- Macro-economic, fiscal and monetary policy debates
- Trade policy, value chains and networks
- Environmental economics
- Labour market economics; migration
- Employer and employee organisations
- Workplace safety and health
- Gender inclusiveness; pay and employment equity
- Education/skills and workplace productivity
- Precarious work
- Pre-retirement
d- Social security, welfare, housing and health; pensions and population ageing
- The sociology and economics of sport; art, and other aspects of culture
