107th Annual Meeting
Seattle
September 1–4, 2011

Annual Meeting and Exhibit Review Lauren West, Director of Meetings and Conferences

For the first time in its history, the American Political Science Association held its annual meeting in Seattle, Washington, bringing together more than 6,000 political scientists from all over the world for a variety of programmatic, networking, and social events. From September 1 to September 4, scholars gathered in the beautiful Pacific Northwest to explore an exciting program focused on the theme The Politics of Rights. The 2011 Annual Meeting Program Chairs Frances Hagopian, Harvard University, and Bonnie Honig, Northwestern University, developed a theme that asked “the discipline bring its empirical and normative lenses to reflect on the domestic, comparative, and international dimensions of the complex politics of rights.”

Wednesday, August 31, offered a pre-convention professional day featuring 34 short courses sponsored by APSA’s Organized Sections, related groups, and other affiliated organizations. Topics ranged from multi-method research to Latino politics to social media use. Thursday, September 1 marked the official beginning of the meeting with numerous panels and roundtable discussions, as well as several key events. The Awards Ceremony and Luncheon recognized more than 30 individuals for their outstanding books, dissertations, and notable career achievements. APSA’s Siting and Engagement Committee hosted a popular tour of Seattle’s rich labor history. International attendees and graduate students were given a special welcome, with get togethers hosted by APSA for both groups. The eventful first day of the meeting culminated with the presidential address by APSA President Carole Pateman, University of California, Los Angeles, titled “Participatory Democracy Revisited,” followed by the 107th Annual Meeting Opening Reception. Attendees at the reception enjoyed a live band, hors d’oeuvres, and beverages. In addition to these special events, the exhibit hall opened on Thursday with more than 80 political science publishers and related companies, a variety of sponsored coffee breaks and receptions, and the poster presentations.

Along with panels, poster sessions, meetings, and receptions, Friday, September 2, included several notable talks, including an address delivered by APSA James Madison Award recipient Jane Mansbridge titled “Democracy’s Unsolved Problems.” Attendees were also invited to attend the Foundations of Political Theory Plenary Address, delivered by Arjun Appadurai, New York University, and the John Gaus Award Lecture, delivered by Hal Rainey, University of Georgia titled “Organizations, Politics, and Public Purposes: Analyzing Public Organizations and Public Management.” The APSA

Reception Honoring Teaching, sponsored by Pi Sigma Alpha, was also held on Friday evening to recognize individuals who have won teaching awards at their university or college in the past year.

On Saturday, September 3, members were encouraged to attend the APSA Annual All Member Business Meeting and were offered a chance to participate in APSA governance. Attendees of this meeting also witnessed the leadership transition, as President Carole Pateman passed the gavel to President-Elect G. Bingham Powell, Jr. Participants also had the opportunity to attend the New Political Science Plenary Address delivered by Frances Fox Piven, “Beating Back the Corporate Assault.” The meeting officially concluded on Sunday, September 4 at noon.

In addition to these scholarly pursuits, meeting attendees also had an opportunity to explore the vibrant city of Seattle, where urban sophistication meets natural beauty. Seattle’s variety of coffee houses, museums, outdoor activities, attractions, and idyllic weather made the city a perfect host for this meeting.

APSA thanks all the organizations that supported the 2011 Annual Meeting, including all its exhibitors and sponsors. Meeting sponsors included Cambridge University Press, Lynne Rienner Publishers, Pearson, Pi Sigma Alpha, and YouGov Scientific Research. ■

New 2011-12 APSA Officers Elected

Outgoing APSA president Carole Pateman passes the gavel to incoming president G. Bingham Powell, Jr.

G. Bingham Powell, Jr., the Marie C. and Joseph C. Wilson Professor of Political Science at the University of Rochester, became APSA's 108th president on September 4 at the close of the APSA Annual Meeting. Carole Pateman, distinguished professor of political science at the University of California, Los Angeles, and honorary professor in the School of European Studies at Cardiff University, symbolically passed the gavel to Powell at the APSA's All Member Business Meeting on September 3, 2011.

Joining Powell in guiding APSA are five new officers. Eight new members of the council will be elected in an all-member election during the month of October. Election results will be available on the APSA website and in the January 2012 issue of PS.

Powell's scholarly work has been in the field of comparative politics. His book Contemporary Democracies: Participation, Stability and Violence (Harvard University Press, 1982) won the APSA's Woodrow Wilson Foundation Award. His most recent articles focus on explaining ideological congruence between citizens and their representatives. He has served as the editor of the American Political Science Review from 1991 to 1995, and as vice-president and organizer of panels for sections on comparative political behavior and teaching political science at the APSA annual meetings. He is a former Guggenheim Fellow, and in 1991, he was elected a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Assuming the position of president-elect is Jane J. Mansbridge, the Charles F. Adams Professor at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University. She has an MA in history and a PhD in political science from Harvard University. Her research lies at the intersection between democratic theory and empirical social science, with a focus on political inequalities and the democratic processes that can counteract those inequalities. Her second book, Why We Lost the ERA, co-recipient of the Kammerer award in 1987 and the Victoria Schuck award in 1988, studies flawed deliberation within a social movement.

In 1989–90, Mansbridge was program chair of the APSA annual meeting, and she has also served as vice-president and a member of the council and executive committee. She has been vice-president and president of the Caucus for Women in Political Science. She currently serves on the editorial boards of Political Theory, Journal of Political Philosophy, and Journal of Politics, among others.

Other 2011–12 officers are vice-presidents, Morris Fiorina, Stanford University; Kerstin Hamann, University of Central Florida; and Niraja Gopal Jayal, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi; treasurer, Jonathan Benjamin-Alvarado, University of Nebraska, Omaha; and secretary, Lisa L. Martin, University of Wisconsin, Madison. ■

2011 Frank J. Goodnow Award for Distinguished Service Presented to Tony Affigne and Robert J-P. Hauck

The Frank J Goodnow Award, created by the APSA Council in 1996, honors the contributions of individuals to the development of the political science profession and the building of the American Political Science Association. APSA's first president, Frank J. Goodnow, exemplified the public service and volunteerism that this award recognizes. Goodnow was the first of many who voluntarily contributed an extraordinary amount of time, energy and attention to building our dynamic and learned profession. The 2011 Frank J. Goodnow award was presented to co-winners Tony Affigne and Robert J-P. Hauck at the APSA Awards Ceremony on Thursday, September 1 in Seattle, Washington. For details and the full citations of the awards and all APSA awards, see the Gazette, this issue. ■

ABOUT THE INSTITUTE

The Ralph Bunche Summer Institute is a five-week program for minority undergraduate students who are interested in pursuing a doctoral degree in political science. The APSA initiated the institute in 1986, and since 2000, it has been hosted and cosponsored by Duke University, under the direction of professor Paula D. McClain. For more information or to download an application for the 2012 institute, visit the APSA website at http://www.apsanet.org_content_6602.cfm. ■

Graduate Student and Scholars Funded

To increase graduate student participation at the Annual Meeting, the association awarded Advanced Graduate Student Travel Grants for the 2011 Annual Meeting in Seattle, Washington. Recognizing challenging economic times across academia, Cambridge University Press offered $5000 to supplement the APSA travel grant program and support graduate students and scholars participating in the Annual Meeting. The names and institutional affiliations of the awardees follow.
