April
1995

Special feature
Ken Turner on pragmatics

language teaching

The international abstracting journal for language teachers and applied linguists

Cambridge University Press
language teaching

The international abstracting journal for language teachers and applied linguists
(formerly Language Teaching and Linguistics: Abstracts)

Compiler and Editor
Valerie Kinsella

Associate Editor
Jenny Pugsley, Professional Services, The British Council, Manchester

Editorial Board
C. J. Brumfit, University of Southampton
R. M. Johnstone, University of Stirling
Alan Mountford, The British Council, Manchester
Joseph Sheils, DECS, Council of Europe, Strasbourg
John Trim, Cambridge
Philippa Wright, Centre for Information on Language Teaching and Research

Mrs Valerie Kinsella, 63 Long Ashton Road, Long Ashton, Bristol BS18 9HW, UK

Published with the support of
The Centre for Information on Language Teaching & Research (CILT)
20 Bedfordbury
London WC2N 4LB, UK
Library open 10.00–17.00, Mon–Tues and Thurs–Fri; 10.00–20.00, Wed;
10.00–13.00, Sat.
0171 379 5110

© Cambridge University Press 1995

Aims and features language teaching is a compact digest of current thinking on the theoretical and practical aspects of learning and teaching languages. It aims to help people concerned with the subject to keep up to date with the latest findings with minimum expenditure of time and money. It aims to encourage cross-fertilisation of ideas between those concerned with the teaching of different foreign languages (e.g. French, German, English) as well as between practising teachers, applied linguists and educational researchers.

In addition to about 130 abstracts in English in each issue, there is a specially commissioned state-of-the-art survey article on an important aspect of language learning or teaching, which features a full bibliography.

There are also brief annotations of recent publications, together with a list of books received, information on where to find substantial bibliographies on particular topics, and details of research projects in various countries.

ISSN 0261-4448