The British Journal for the History of Science (BJHS) is the journal of the British Society for the History of Science, the major national body for this subject in Britain. One of the primary aims of the journal is to publish high-quality papers and reviews in all articles of the history of science. There are four issues each year comprising an annual volume of around 500 pages. BJHS also includes an extensive book review section. Ocasional thematic issues are published on important problems or topics.

Contributions are very welcome. They should be sent to the Editor, Simon Schaffer, Department of History and Philosophy of Science, University of Cambridge, Free School Lane, Cambridge CB2 3RH, email psi@cam.ac.uk. They are considered on the understanding that they are unpublished and are not offered to another journal. Contributions should be typed in double spacing with a margin of at least 2.5 cm on all sides and should be sent in electronic form as an attachment or on floppy disc, preferably in MS Word format. Hard copies on A4 or American quarto paper are, however, acceptable, in which case two copies of the text should be sent to the Editor.

Text should be double spaced. Margins should always be at least 2.5 cm. Long quotations should be indicated as single-spaced quotations. Spellings should follow the Oxford English Dictionary. All papers should be clearly organized and primary and secondary sources must be cited in the text. Endnotes should be typed in single spacing and numbered consecutively. Cite as follows:

5 John Herschel to George Peacock, 17 May 1836, Herschel Papers, Royal Astronomical Society, London (subsequently H Papers, vol. 1, London: priv. publ., [1836]), 26. Subsequent references can be cited as name, date, abbreviated source, box, page or folio number. Subsequent references can be cited as name, date, abbreviated source, box, page or folio number.

The editor requires the final agreed version of the manuscript to be supplied double spaced and always in electronic form as a Word document with appropriate electronic artwork files. Place your institutional address and acknowledgements at the end of the manuscript. Premises to make multiple copies must be obtained from the Society. Authors receive twenty-five offprints of articles free. Typescripts are not normally returned to authors. In all matters concerning the publication of the article, the Editor's decision is final. The Editor, Editorial Board, Officers and Council of the Society cannot accept responsibility for any views expressed by contributors in articles published in the Journal.
