Notes for contributors

(1) Academic research-based articles can be of two types. Those intended for scrutiny by the journal editors alone can range up to 4,000 words in length. Those which authors wish to go forward to further scrutiny beyond the editorial team (that is, for peer review) can range up to 6,000 words. Authors should make it clear whether they wish their submissions to be for ‘editor review’ or ‘peer review’. Although every effort will be made to reach a decision on peer-review articles quickly, delays might sometimes occur in this process.

(2) Shorter items of comment and information, and reviews of print and electronic materials, are also welcome, and should be in the 500- to 2,000-word range.

(3) Material is managed by email and attachment to and from the editors, englishtoday@cambridge.org

(4) Subsidiary text and illustrative material (lists, specimens, photographs, diagrams, and cartoons, etc.) can be added to articles, where necessary in numbered panels and tables, and are encouraged.

(5) Any notes should be concise, and references/bibliography should be limited to the content of the paper. Website references should be in a list of their own after all other material.

(6) Every effort is made to retain distinctive usage and conventions, such as British or American spelling, special punctuation, and IPA symbols.

(7) Submissions to be for ‘editor review’ or ‘peer review’ can range up to c.6,000 words. Authors should make it clear whether they wish their submission to be for ‘editor review’ or ‘peer review’.

(8) The author(s) of a submission should provide 100–150 words of biography (per person).

(9) Unsolicited articles that could interest readers and from the editors, <englishtoday@cambridge.org>

(10) Prospective writers who are not regular readers of English Today are encouraged to submit articles that are not written with the journal in mind but that were not written with the journal in mind, on a topic of interest to readers of the journal. Prospective writers who are not regular readers of English Today are encouraged to submit articles that are not written with the journal in mind, on a topic of interest to readers of the journal.

(11) Contributions will be supplied with a PDF file of their contribution.
