

Oxford University Press

Strategies of British India

Britain, Iran, and Afghanistan 1798–1850

M.E. Yapp

The subject of this book is the formulation and execution of British policy in the region between the Caspian and the Indus during the first half of the nineteenth century. The author disputes the accepted view that the defence of British India was an important determinant of British foreign policy, arguing that strategic discussion served mainly to conceal fundamental differences between London and Calcutta. £40

Islamic Society and the South Asian Frontier

The Mappilas of Malabar 1498–1922

Stephen Frederic Dale

This is a study of the Muslims of Kerala, South India, from the arrival of Vasco da Gama in 1498 to the Mappila Rebellion of 1921–2. It focuses on the relations between Muslims and the Europeans and Hindus in Kerala, explaining the tense and often violent relations between Muslims and non-Muslims, in the context of the history of Islamic communities in both South and South-east Asia. Illustrated £17.50

Palanpur

The Economy of an Indian Village

C.J. Bliss and N.H. Stern

Here is an ambitious and systematic attempt to put to the test theories of underdevelopment and of the motives and behaviour of poor farmers in an Indian village. As well as reporting on the village, its population, and institutions, the authors review the development models on which they have drawn. The implications of the research findings for development theory, for policy, and for the future of Palanpur are discussed. £12.50

Hinduism

Nirad Chaudhuri

Readers who want to understand Hinduism will appreciate Nirad Chaudhuri's book for the liveliness and clarity of its picture of Hindu life as it was, and is today. It rejects familiar assumptions about early Hinduism, reassesses its formative influences, and examines the cult of temple and image worship in general, as well as the three major cults of Siva, Krishna, and the Mother Goddess. £3.50 Oxford Paperbacks

South Asian Studies

Edited by the South Asia Institute of Heidelberg University/New Delhi Branch

7. Günther-Dietz Sontheimer: The Joint Hindu Family

Its Evolution as a Legal Institution

1977. XXI, 250 Seiten, Ln. m. Schutzumschlag DM 38.—

ISBN 3-515-02493-X

The "laying at rest" of the joint Hindu family is said to have been initiated at least from the point of law and its disappearance in society has frequently been forecast by sociologists and by public opinion. Now that the controversy between protagonists and reformers seems to have been subsided it may be the right time for re-examining without bias and prejudice an institution which has often been misunderstood and misinterpreted. The present study traces the outlines of the evolution of this institution questioning some assumptions regarding its history, nature and function.

8./9. South Asia Interdisciplinary Regional Research Programme

8. Orissa Research Project Report

Anncharlott Eschmann / Hermann Kulke / Gaya Charan Tripathi, edd.:

The Cult of Jagannāth and the Regional Tradition of Orissa

1978. XX, 538 Seiten m. zahlr. Tab. u. 4 Kartenskizzen, 76 Abb. auf 29 Taf., 8 Faltktn.,

Ln. m. Schutzumschlag DM 48.—

ISBN 3-515-02954-0

Between the "great" tradition of Indian religion and culture and the "little" tradition of India's villages there is a regional tradition which encompasses features of both. The cult of Jagannath, a God who emerged from a tribal background and became identified with Vishnu has played a vital role in the formation of the regional tradition in Orissa. — A group of German and Indian scholars have studied this cult and its impact in Orissa in detail. The ritual in the temple, the relation between King and God in the past, the legends surrounding the cult, the pattern of pilgrimage, the role of the Brahmins and various other facets of Orissa's tradition have been analyzed in the contributions to this volume. — This interdisciplinary study of the regional tradition is the first of its kind in India.

9. Dhanbad Research Project Report

(a) Dietmar Rothermund / D. C. Wadhwa, edd.:

Zamindars, Mines and Peasants

Studies in the History of an Indian Coalfield and its Rural Hinterland

1978. XXI, 236 Seiten m. zahlr. Tabellen, 4 Graphiken u. 2 Karten,

Ln. m. Schutzumschlag DM 32.—

ISBN 3-515-03013-1

(b) Dietmar Rothermund / Erhard Kropp / Günter Dienemann, edd.:

Urban Growth and Rural Stagnation

Studies in the Economy of an Indian Coalfield and its Rural Hinterland

1981. Etwa 500 Seiten, Ln. m. Schutzumschlag DM 58.—

ISBN 3-515-03015-8

(c) John P. Neelson, ed.: Social Stratification and Political Structure

A Survey of the Indian Coalfield

1980. Etwa 300 Seiten, Ln. m. Schutzumschlag DM 38.—

ISBN 3-515-03016-6

In 1970 and 1971, a group of scholars from Heidelberg and Freiburg Universities, Germany, and their Indian colleagues conducted a large scale interdisciplinary field research project in Dhanbad District, Bihar, India. They were interested in the growth of new urban centres beyond the Eastern metropolis, Calcutta, and in the impact of such centres on their rural hinterland.

Gesamtpreis der 3 Bände: DM 110.—

ISBN 3-515-03006-9

10. Prabhat Mukherjee: History of the Chaitanya-Faith in Orissa

1979. VIII, 126 Seiten, 2 Kunstdrucktaf., Ln. m. Schutzumschlag DM 18.— ISBN 3-515-03115-4

The present study originated as part of an interdisciplinary research project on Orissa jointly conducted by the South Asia Institute of Heidelberg University and the Department of Indology of Freiburg University. It deals with the history of the medieval Vaiṣṇava Bhakti movement in Orissa which was promoted there by the famous Bengali saint Chaitanya (d. 1537). His influence in molding the temple city of Puri can still be noticed today. The book is based on Bengali and Sanskrit sources besides fresh sources in Oriya and throws light on the life of Chaitanya in Orissa, the influence which the sect founded by him exerted there and also its relationship with Vṛndāvan, in the homeland of Kṛṣṇaīm. The book constitutes an important addition to the knowledge of the history of religion in Orissa and India.

FRANZ STEINER VERLAG GMBH · WIESBADEN

Cambridge Journals in the Social Sciences

Ageing and Society

A new international journal devoted to publishing contributions to the understanding of human ageing, particularly from the social sciences and humanities. Its interpretation of ageing as a subject is wide and includes all aspects of the human condition whether they relate to individuals, groups, institutions or societies. £24.00 for institutions £17.00 for individuals

Archives européennes de sociologie European Journal of Sociology

The aims of this journal are firstly to reaffirm and continue the European tradition of historical and comparative sociology, and to incorporate in it the more important contributions made by empirical studies. Secondly, they are to encourage comparative studies of the institutions of European societies, and of European institutions in other parts of the world. £22.00 for institutions £12.50 for individuals

Comparative Studies in Society and History

This is a truly international forum of social analysis which publishes the work of authors from throughout the world in many disciplines – including history, sociology, anthropology, political science, as well as law, economics and the humanities. £23.00 for institutions £12.50 for individuals

Journal of Public Policy

This new journal will publish articles that use concepts derived from any of the social sciences to illuminate a significant problem facing contemporary government. Articles which cross the conventional boundaries between the social sciences will be particularly welcome. £30.00 for institutions £15.00 for individuals

Journal of Social Policy

This journal is concerned with the historical and theoretical analysis of social policy and with processes and problems in the implementation of social policy at both national and local levels. It explores the relationship of social administration to all the social sciences as well as to social work and social action. £29.00 for institutions £17.50 for members of BSA

For further details write to Journals Publicity

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

(Publishing Division)

The Edinburgh Building, Shaftesbury Road, Cambridge CB2 2RU, England

The Cambridge Economic History of India

Volume 1: c. 1200-1750

Edited by TAPAN RAYCHAUDHURI and IRFAN HABIB

Volume 2: c. 1757-1970

Edited by DHARMA KUMAR with the assistance of MEGHNAD DESAI

This two-volume history traces the economic evolution of the Indian sub-continent, bringing together the work of economists, historians, sociologists, social anthropologists and demographers to summarise existing knowledge and undertake new research. The final part of the history deals with post-Independence developments in India and Pakistan.

Volume 1 (Forthcoming October)

About £30.00 net

Volume 2 (Forthcoming December)

About £37.00 net

Public Expenditure and Indian Development Policy 1960-70

JOHN TOYE

This examination of the economic development of India during the 1960s makes it clear that the control of public expenditure is a central requirement of the strategy of developing an economy by means of public sector capital accumulation, and that for a variety of reasons public expenditure in India has not been controlled in the required way.

£20.00 net

Cambridge South Asian Studies 25

Shanghai

Revolution and Development in an Asian Metropolis

Edited by CHRISTOPHER HOWE

A collection of essays discussing the critical role played by Shanghai in China's internal political and economic affairs, and in the history of international relations in the Far East.

£30.00 net

Contemporary China Institute Publications

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

The Revolutionary Origins of Modern Japan

Thomas M. Huber. Challenging the popular view of the Meiji Restoration as a “revolution from above,” this book argues that its main cause was neither the growing threat of the West nor traditional loyalty to Emperor and nation, but rather lay in class conflict and long-term institutional change. The author sees the Restoration as a revolution against feudal privilege carried out from below by a service intelligentsia of minor administrators, priests, scholars, and village officials. The book focuses on the politically most effective body of activists, those in the domain of Choshu, and on their most important leaders of the 1850’s and 1860’s: Yoshida Shoin, Kusaka Genzui, and Takasugi Shinsaku. A final chapter explains various heretofore puzzling aspects of the Meiji period (1868–1912) in terms of its revolutionary origins, and concludes by showing that the Restoration, far from being uniquely Japanese, had many of the characteristics we associate with the great revolutions of England, France, and Russia. $19.50

The Anthropology of Taiwanese Society

Edited by Emily Martin Ahern & Hill Gates. This volume sums up over twenty years of fieldwork and publication, and contains the fullest and best integrated set of anthropological data we have for any region of China, for any period of history. It deals directly with the difficult question that faces China anthropologists—in what sense is Taiwan a part of China? Should Taiwan be primarily described as a natural end product of a long cultural tradition (a Chinese province), or as a product of external factors (a small, rapidly developing society with the world’s densest population, uniquely situated in the world economy)? For other anthropologists, it contains data and analysis that pertain to a variety of current problems: the relationship between ethnicity and social class, the role of historical factors in anthropological explanation, and the interplay between national and local political and economic systems. $30.00

Stanford University Press

Modern Asian Studies is concerned with the history, geography, politics, sociology, literature, economics and social anthropology of South Asia, South-East Asia, China and Japan.

Contributions should be based on original research or field-work. They should be between 2000 and 8000 words long. Two typed copies should be submitted. Each author will receive twenty-five free offprints of his article and a copy of the Journal in which it appears.

Submission of an article will be taken to imply that it has not been previously published and that it is not on offer to any other publisher. In the interests of authors, copyright is normally assigned to Cambridge University Press. The editor welcomes expression of all shades of opinion, but responsibility for them rests with their authors.

All correspondence should be addressed to Dr Gordon Johnson, Selwyn College, Cambridge CB3 9DQ, England.

The cover illustration shows rioting in Bombay 1929, reproduced with the Permission of the Press Association Ltd.

Printed in Great Britain at the Alden Press, Oxford

MODERN ASIAN STUDIES

VOLUME 15 PART 3 JULY 1981

ARTICLES	PAGE
JOHN GALLAGHER: Nationalisms and the Crisis of Empire, 1919-1922	355
KEITH JEFFREY: 'An English Barrack in the Oriental Seas'? India in the Aftermath of the First World War	369
JOHN GALLAGHER and ANIL SEAL: Britain and India Between the Wars	387
AYESHA JALAL and ANIL SEAL: Alternative to Partition: Muslim Politics between the Wars	415
B. R. TOMLINSON: Colonial Firms and the Decline of Colonialism in Eastern India 1914-1947	455
CLAUDE MARKOVITS: Indian Business and the Congress Provincial Governments 1937-1939	487
B. CHATTERJI: Business and Politics in the 1930s: Lancashire and the Making of the Indo-British Trade Agreement, 1939	527
CHRISTOPHER BAKER: Colonial Rule and the Internal Economy in Twentieth-Century Madras	575
RAJNARAYAN CHANDAVARKAR: Workers' politics and the Mill Districts in Bombay between the Wars	603
D. A. WASHBROOK: Law, State and Society in Colonial India	649

© Cambridge University Press 1981

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

The Pitt Building, Trumpington St., Cambridge CB2 1RP
32 East 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10022