ALBERTO GINASTERA
Three operas of power and originality

DON RODRIGO
Opus 31 (1964)
Opera in 3 Acts, set in Toledo during the 8th century.
Libretto by Alejandro Casona, in Spanish.
"...a modern masterpiece, as compelling a piece of musical dramaturgy as the past few decades have produced . . ."

New York Herald Tribune

BOMARZO
Opus 34 (1967)
Opera in 2 Acts, set in Bomarzo, Florence and Rome during the 16th century. Libretto by Manuel Mujica Láinez, in Spanish (or German translation)
"...an extension of Ginastera's command of a remarkably varied range of coloristic and rhythmic devices to the point of complete control at either end of the dynamic scale . . ."

Irving Kolodin

BEATRIX CENCI
(1971)
"Beatrix Cenci is hypnotic to the eye and ear. Ginastera has a rare faculty of psychological delineation through instrumental textures as well as through interweaving melodic lines reinforced by arresting harmonies."

New York Post
