

Nineteenth-Century Music Review

Editor

Bennett Zon, Durham University, UK

Nineteenth-Century Music Review aims to locate music within the widest possible framework of intellectual activity pertaining to the long nineteenth century (c.1789–1914). It particularly welcomes interdisciplinary scholarship that explores music within the context of other artistic and scientific discourses. Articles with fine visual or iconographic content are encouraged, as are those rich in musically illustrative material. Articles accepted for publication will reflect a diversity of critical viewpoints.

All material submitted for consideration will receive open-minded editorial attention, and works, once accepted for peer review, will proceed anonymously to at least two readers (one from the editorial board, the other external to it). Books and music will be reviewed extensively in each issue with the particular aim of extending awareness of music literature into extra-musical disciplines.

Tempo

Editors

Christopher Fox, Brunel University, UK

Juliet Fraser, London, UK

TEMPO exists to document the international new music scene while contributing to, and stimulating, current debates therein. Its emphasis is on musical developments in our own century, as well as on music that came to prominence in the later twentieth century that has not yet received the attention it deserves. The articles and reviews cover the new music scene in all its complexity, featuring discussion of compositional trends, performance practices, listening practices, new music contexts and reception histories. TEMPO is sympathetic both to writing about new forms of creative practice (electronic, interdisciplinary, performance-based) and to writing that employs innovative methods of enquiry that differ from the aims of traditional musicology.

Instructions for Contributors

Please direct submissions to <http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/tcm> and queries to tcm@cambridge.org. Submitted files should include a cover sheet giving the author's name, postal address, telephone number and email address. To ensure anonymity during the refereeing process, the article itself should not display the name of the author. Upon acceptance of a submission, the author will be asked to assign copyright (on certain conditions) to Cambridge University Press.

Articles should normally be between 6,000 and 12,000 words in length (main text); authors proposing longer or shorter submissions should seek the advice of the editors.

Authors should supply in a separate file an abstract of 120–50 words and a short (one paragraph) biographical note. Submissions will not be forwarded for review until an abstract has been provided.

Submissions will be read initially by one of the two co-editors. They may be rejected at this stage, or be sent on for review by two independent assessors, who may or may not be members of the Editorial Board. Submissions are considered on the understanding that they have not been previously, and are not currently being, considered for publication elsewhere.

Authors will normally be notified within two months as to whether their submission has been accepted for publication.

Contributors are responsible for obtaining permission to reproduce any material in which they do not hold copyright and for ensuring that the appropriate acknowledgements are included in their typescript. No article will be accepted for publication until all relevant permissions have been obtained.

See journals.cambridge.org/tcm for an extended version of the Instructions for Contributors.
