Contemporary European History covers the history of Eastern and Western Europe, including the United Kingdom, from 1918 to the present. By combining a wide geographical compass with a relatively short time span, the journal achieves both range and depth in its coverage. It is open to all forms of historical inquiry - including cultural, economic, international, political and social approaches - and welcomes comparative and transnational analysis. One issue per year explores a broad theme under the guidance of a guest editor. The journal regularly features contributions from scholars outside the Anglophone community and acts as a channel of communication between European historians throughout the continent and beyond it.
Rural History is well known as a stimulating forum for interdisciplinary exchange. Its definition of rural history ignores traditional subject boundaries to encourage the cross-fertilisation that is essential for an understanding of rural society. It stimulates original scholarship and provides access to the best of recent research. While concentrating on the English-speaking world and Europe, the journal is not limited in geographical coverage. Subject areas include: agricultural history; historical ecology; folklore; popular culture and religion; rural literature; landscape history, archaeology and material culture; vernacular architecture; ethnography, anthropology and rural sociology; the study of women in rural societies; relationships between the urban and the rural; and the politics of rural societies. The journal accommodates varying disciplinary reference systems, and publishes book reviews and review articles.

Rural History is now indexed in the Thomson Reuters JCR.

Directions for ILWCH Contributors: Unsolicited proposals for articles and review essays are welcome, but must adhere to the following guidelines. Prospective authors should submit a 500-word abstract of the work they wish to submit to the journal. The editors are particularly interested in proposals with resonance beyond strictly national historiographies. Submissions should clearly explain the article’s research question and argument, note the types of sources the author intends to use, and demonstrate the ways that the article will reflect the journal’s commitment to publishing work across geographic regions and historical time periods. (Essays in themselves do not need to be “transnational.”) Editors will decide quickly whether they wish to review a full manuscript; authors will then be sent style and submission guidelines. Abstracts for proposed articles can be uploaded at http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/ilwch.
