Leiden Journal of International Law

Firmly established as one of Europe’s leading journals in the field, Leiden Journal of International Law (LJIL) provides a forum for two vital areas, namely international legal theory and international dispute settlement. It is unique in providing the most comprehensive coverage of the world’s most important international tribunals in The Hague and elsewhere (such as the ICJ, ICTY, ICC and others), as well as examining new trends in international legal thinking. LJIL is essential reading for academics and practitioners who need to stay abreast of recent developments.

Leiden Journal of International Law

Instructions for contributors

EDITORIAL POLICY
Leiden Journal of International Law is firmly established as one of Europe’s leading journals in the field. It provides a forum for two vital areas, namely international legal theory and international dispute settlement. It is unique in providing the most comprehensive coverage of the world’s most important international tribunals in The Hague and elsewhere (such as the ICJ, ICTY, ICC and others), as well as examining new trends in international legal thinking. LJIL is essential reading for academics and practitioners who need to stay abreast of recent developments.

Only articles which fall within the scope of the journal will be considered for publication.

SUBMISSIONS
Articles in good English to be considered for publication should be submitted online at http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/ljil. More information can be found at the editors’ website www.grotiuscentre.org (under LJIL).

Submission of a paper will be taken to imply that neither the article as a whole, nor any substantial part of it, has been published previously nor is it being considered for publication elsewhere. Upon acceptance of a paper, the authors will be asked to assign copyright to the Foundation of the Leiden Journal of International Law.

Contributors are responsible for obtaining permission to reproduce any materials, including photographs and illustrations for which they do not hold copyright, and for ensuring that the appropriate acknowledgements are included in the manuscript.

All contributions to LJIL are peer-reviewed.

MANUSCRIPT PREPARATION
The Editors recommend the following word counts for the journal’s sections: Articles up to 10,000 words; Hague International Tribunals and Current Legal Developments up to 5,000 words; Book Review Essays up to 2,000, and Book Reviews up to 1,500 words.

PROCEDURES
After receipt, the contribution will be sent for peer review. If the article is considered eligible for publication, any revisions deemed necessary will be sent to the author. The author will be given three weeks to make the necessary changes.

TEXT CONVENTIONS
Copy-editing can be a lengthy and complex business, so it is essential that contributors observe the LJIL’s text conventions closely. Typewritten work which does not may be returned for amendment. Contributions should refer to the LJIL’s rules of citation and points of style, which can be found at http://assets.cambridge.org/1J/LJIL/ljil.pdf

PROOFS
Proofs may be expected about three months before publication. Only essential typographical or factu- al errors may be changed at proof stage. Resist the temptation to revise or add to the text. The publisher reserves the right to charge authors for correction of non-typographical errors.

OFFPRINTS
Authors of articles, review essays and book reviews will receive a pdf file of their contribution and a complimentary issue upon publication. Offprints can be purchased if the form is completed and returned to the publisher on receipt of the first proofs.
