Legal Theory draws contributions not only from academic law, but from a wide range of related disciplines in the humanities and social sciences, including philosophy, political science, economics, history and sociology. Topics covered fall mainly into the broad categories of analytical and normative jurisprudence, doctrinal theory, policy analyses of legal doctrines and critical theories of law.
Firmly established as one of Europe’s leading journals in the field, the Leiden Journal of International Law (LJI) provides a forum for two vital areas, namely international legal theory and international dispute settlement. It is unique in providing the most comprehensive coverage of the world’s most important international tribunals in The Hague (such as the ICJ, ICTY, ICC and others) and elsewhere, as well as examining new trends in international legal thinking. LJI is essential reading for academics and practitioners who need to stay abreast of recent developments in these areas.
The World Trade Review was established at the initiative of the Secretariat of the World Trade Organization (WTO) in close cooperation with Cambridge University Press. It is an independent journal - the Editor and all but one member of the Editorial Board are drawn from university faculties - that includes articles written from economic, legal, political and inter-disciplinary perspectives on issues of relevance to the multilateral trading system. Priority is given to papers that, along with being academically rigorous, are also accessible to government policy officials and the wider public. The journal also includes shorter articles seeking to rebut or challenge published papers.
The Asian Journal of Law and Society adds an increasingly important Asian perspective to global law and society scholarship. This independent, peer-reviewed publication encourages empirical and multi-disciplinary research and welcomes articles on law and its relationship with society in Asia, articles bringing an Asian perspective to socio-legal issues of global concern, and articles using Asia as a starting point for a comparative exploration of law and society topics. Its coverage of Asia is broad and stretches from East Asia, South Asia and South East Asia to Central Asia.

Find out how to submit your paper here journals.cambridge.org/asianjls
Canadian Journal of Law and Society

La Revue Canadienne Droit et Société

The Canadian Journal of Law and Society is committed to publishing innovative research that speaks to theoretical and empirical questions in law and society scholarship.

La Revue Canadienne Droit et Société (RCDS) se consacre à la publication d'études novatrices sur des questions théoriques et empiriques dans le domaine socio-juridique.

Published for the Canadian Law and Society Association Publiée pour l'Association Canadienne Droit et Société journals.cambridge.org/cjls-rcds

CONTENTS

Special Issue: Frontiers in Coronial Justice

Articles

103–114 Introduction: Frontiers in Coronial Justice – ushering in a new era of coronial research
Rebecca Scott Bray and Greg Martin

115–140 Exploring fatal facts: current issues in coronial law, policy and practice
Rebecca Scott Bray and Greg Martin

141–161 Taken lives matter: open justice and recognition in inquests into deaths at the hands of the state
Sam McInosh

162–177 Deaths after police contact in England and Wales: the effects of Article 2 of the European Convention on Human Rights on coronial practice
David Baker

178–194 ‘I can’t put that on paper.’ How medical professional values shape the content of death certificates
Myles Leslie

195–209 The coronial manual and the bureaucratic logic of the coroner’s office
Marc Trabsky

210–224 The continuing implications of the ‘crime’ of suicide: a brief history of the present
Gordon Tait and Belinda Carpenter

Book reviews

225–227 After Legal Equality: Family, Sex, Kinship
Rosemary Auchmuty

Oliver Gilman

https://doi.org/10.1017/S1744552316000306 Published online by Cambridge University Press