The Chief Justiceship of Charles Evans Hughes, 1930–1941

William G. Ross

“Charles Evans Hughes served as Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court during one of the most critical periods in the history of the Court and the nation. In this carefully researched book, William G. Ross adds depth and complexity to our understanding of both Hughes and the Court that he led. Ross also provides fresh insight into the question of the extent and nature of the constitutional change of the 1930s that resulted in what Ross appropriately describes as ‘the first modern Court.’”

Senator Sam Ervin, Last of the Founding Fathers

KARL E. CAMPBELL

“Rescuing Sam Ervin from the clichés that have marked much of what has been written about him, Campbell shows areas of continuity. . . . At the same time, Campbell captures the way in which Ervin’s positions evolved over time and places him squarely in the context of his community, his state, and his region. This book should be of interest even to people who may not care a whit about Sam Ervin, because Campbell has so skillfully shown the culture of Ervin’s lifetime and how it shaped him and his generation.”—Dan T. # The Papers of Abraham Lincoln

Legal Documents and Cases

Edited by Daniel W. Stowell

Many in politics began their careers in the law; no one has cut such a distinguished path in this regard as Abraham Lincoln. Before his presidency, from 1836 to 1861, Lincoln practiced law in the courts of central Illinois. Part of an ambitious undertaking to collect and publish the surviving documentary record of Lincoln's life, this four-volume set addresses his quarter-century law career.

Arranged chronologically, the four volumes present documents from more than fifty of Lincoln's most interesting, important, or representative cases, all of which are transcribed and annotated. The edition features illuminating essays on Lincoln's career as a lawyer and as a court official, as well as a biographical directory, an extensive legal glossary, and a cumulative index covering all four volumes.

Doing Justice to Mercy Religion, Law, and Criminal Justice

Edited by Jonathan Rothchild,
Matthew Myer Boulton, and Kevin Jung

Authored by legal practitioners, activists, and theorists in addition to theologians and ethicists, the essays collected here are informed by timeless principles, and yet they could not be timelier. The trend in sentencing moves toward an increased severity, and the number of incarcerated people in the United States is at an all-time high. Doing Justice to Mercy explores the legal, philosophical, and theological grounds for mercy in our courts, and then moves to the practical ways in which mercy may be implemented.

Sacred Claims Repatriation and Living Tradition

Greg Johnson

The Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (NAGPRA) provides a legal framework within which Native Americans can seek the repatriation of human remains and certain categories of cultural objects—including “sacred objects”—from federally funded institutions. Sacred Claims is the first book to analyze the ways in which religious discourse is used to articulate repatriation claims. The author takes this act as one instance in a larger context wherein native peoples around the globe must engage legal arenas in order to preserve their heritage.
