The Judicial System in Southern Nigeria 1815–1954

O Adewoye

An examination of the British imposed judicial system in Southern Nigeria from the first Court of Equity until the end of a unified Judicial system and the beginning of the regionalisation of the Judiciary a hundred years later. Particular attention is focused on the introduction of the English legal system as an agency of colonial control.

'A first-class piece of research, of substantially wider interest and reference than the Nigerian legal profession . . . worthy of its place in the pre-eminent Ibadan History Series'.

Press and Politics in Nigeria 1880-1937

F I A Omu

A serious study of the development of the Press in Nigeria. It looks at the rise of the newspaper and the influences behind it, placing it in its historical context. It evaluates, as far as evidence permits, the effectiveness of Press criticism and agitation.

The International Journal of AFRICAN HISTORICAL STUDIES

Published for the African Studies Center, Boston University, by Africana Publishing Company, this quarterly journal is now in its 11th year of publication and has become the best-known journal of African studies published in the United States. Scholars from many fields contribute original work ranging from prehistoric archeology or slave economics to ethnology in Ethiopia. The Notes and Documents section offers studies of new material drawn from written and oral sources.

Recent and forthcoming articles:

Akbar Muhammad, "The Samorian Occupation of Bondoukou: An Indigenous View"

Robert L. Tignor, "Economic Planning and Development Projects in Interwar Egypt"

Jan Hogendorn, "The Economics of Slave Use on Two Plantations in the Zaria Emirate of the Sokoto Caliphate"

J. L. Spaulding, "The Evolution of the Islamic Judiciary in Sinnar"

Allan R. Meyers, "Class, Ethnicity, and Slavery: The Origins of the Moroccan 'Abid'"

Leading authorities review more than thirty titles in the Book Review section of each issue. Together these constitute the most thorough review available of recent literature in African historical writing.

Radical Nationalism in Cameroun

Social Origins of the U.P.C. Rebellion

Richard A. Joseph

'Richard Joseph was among the last students of Thomas Hodgkin and this book is an excellent tribute to both supervisor and student. . . . The whole study is one of considerable distinction and should be read by any serious Africanist. It will also be valuable to those studying rural politics in under-developed countries.' British Book News. £15 Oxford Studies in African Affairs

The Kano Civil War and British Over-Rule

1882-1940

Adamu Fika

This study is concerned with the impact of British colonial rule on the city and emirate of Kano. But it has far wider implications, as Kano proved to be the testing ground for the particular blend of British Indirect Rule, which was later exported to Southern Nigeria and other parts of British-ruled Africa. This is the first major survey to examine this period of Kano history in its entirety. Illustrated £10

Mende Government and Politics under Colonial Rule

A Historical Study of Political Change in Sierra Leone 1890-1937

Arthur Abraham

Existing interpretations of Sierra Leone's history and culture have been based on a biased literature of the colonial period. This book aims to correct this outlook; local and national archives and oral traditions enable the author to challenge these interpretations. He argues that political change was largely the result of African reaction to European domination and not merely the consequence of a one-sided colonial policy. £8 Sierra Leone University Press

African Traditional Architecture

A Study of the Housing Settlement Patterns of Rural Kenya

Kaj B. Anderson

This photographic survey of housing and settlement patterns in rural Kenya seeks to draw attention to a largely overlooked area of study. It examines the relationship between climate, physical and social environment, and the housing facilities used by the majority of Kenyans, and seeks an integration of man, activity, and environment incorporating the best of traditional and modern techniques and methods. Illustrated £12.75

Politics in Africa

Dennis Austin

An experienced commentator on modern African political affairs presents a basic analysis of the ways newly independent African governments have acquired authority, used the structures of power, and adapted to their own purposes the practices of the former colonial state. A general outline chapter is followed by chapters concentrating on West, East, Central, and Southern Africa. A final chapter looks at Africa through the eyes of its novelists and poets. The resulting book is a readable introduction to African politics of interest to laymen and specialists alike. Published for the University of Rhode Island. Cloth, $12.50; paper, $6.50

British Business and Ghanaian Independence

Josephine Milburn

During the late 1930's a long period of dynamic development of Africa's Gold Coast gained momentum, leading finally to independence. British businesses were actively engaged there in trading and in cocoa marketing. Ranging in motive from profit-seeking exploiters to humanitarian developers, these varied businesses played a significant role in the economic and political developments of the country as it moved toward statehood. This study analyzes the relations between British businesses operating in the Gold Coast and the Colonial Office in London, and evaluates the firms' role in the development of the country. Published for the University of Rhode Island. $12.50

CONTRIBUTIONS

Contributions to the Journal are welcomed. They may be submitted in either English or French. They should not exceed about 6000 words (excluding footnotes), except with the prior approval of the Editors. A summary of the contents of the article, not exceeding about 300 words in length, should be attached on a separate sheet. Contributors are asked to observe closely the conventions listed in the Notes for Contributors, Vol. XV, pp. 173-4. It is essential that contributors observe these conventions, as the Journal now goes straight into page proof. This severely limits the number of corrections which are possible.

Page proofs will be sent, if necessary by airmail, to each contributor (or his nominee) provided that the Editors have been given an address through which he can be reached without delay. Corrections should be kept to the minimum, and should be corrections, not new material. If they are to be incorporated in the master proof corrected by the Editors, it is important that the contributor should return the page proofs, by airmail if necessary, to the Editor named when they are sent out (and not to the Cambridge University Press), within ten days of his receipt of them.

Contributors of articles and review articles receive 25 free offprints. Additional offprints may be obtained at reasonable cost, provided that they are ordered before publication on the special form sent out with the page proofs.

All contributions and books for review should be addressed to The Editors, The Journal of African History, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, London, W.C.1.
