

	Page
EDITORIAL	v
Corrigendum	vi
System stability and transformation: a global system approach	219
DAVID SINGER, Professor of Political Science, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor
The new international economic order: trade policy for primary commodities	233
COLIN KIRKPATRICK, Lecturer in Economics, University of Manchester
FRED NIXSON, Lecturer in Economics, University of Manchester
Domestic politics of Japan's foreign policy: a case study of the ratification of the non-proliferation treaty	254
JOSEPH FRANKEL, Professor of Politics, University of Southampton
Three approaches to the international system: some ontological and epistemological considerations	269
RICHARD LITTLE, Lecturer in Politics, the Open University
A double omission	286
VENDULKA KUBÁLKOVÁ, Lecturer in Political Theory, University of Queensland
A. A. CRUICKSHANK, Professor of Politics, University of Otago

ALAN BRIER AND LYNTON ROBINS, Consensus and cleavage in Labour's perception of the world: A method for investigating Attitude structure and group similarity	308
ALASTAIR BUCHAN, American perceptions of the post-war world	331
BRIAN P. WHITE, The Study of British foreign policy: some comments on Professor Barber's review article	340
Correspondence	349