English Language & Linguistics

Editors
Laurel J. Brinton, University of British Columbia, Vancouver, Canada
Patrick Honeybone, University of Edinburgh, UK
Bernd Kortmann, University of Freiburg, Germany

Founding Editors
Bas Aarts, University College London
David Denison, University of Manchester
Richard Hogg, University of Manchester, UK

English Language & Linguistics focuses on the description of the English language within the framework of contemporary linguistics. The journal is concerned equally with the synchronic and the diachronic aspects of English language studies. Articles contribute to our understanding of the structure and development of the English language.

Price information
is available at: http://journals.cambridge.org/ell

Free email alerts
Keep up-to-date with new material – sign up at http://journals.cambridge.org/ell-alerts
Language Teaching is the essential research resource for language professionals providing a rich and expert overview of research in the field of second-language teaching and learning. It offers critical survey articles of recent research on specific topics, second and foreign languages and countries, and invites original research articles reporting on replication studies and meta-analyses. The journal also includes regional surveys of outstanding doctoral dissertations, topic-based research timelines, theme-based research agendas, and recent plenary conference speeches. Research-in-progress reports, themed comparative book review articles and a list of publications received complement the content of each issue.

Price information
is available at: http://journals.cambridge.org/ita

Free email alerts
Keep up-to-date with new material – sign up at http://journals.cambridge.org/ita-alerts
Notes for contributors

(1) Academic research-based articles can be of two types. Those intended for scrutiny by the journal editors alone can range up to 4,000 words in length. Those which authors wish to go forward to further scrutiny beyond the editorial team (that is, for peer review) can range up to c.6,000 words. Authors should make it clear whether they wish their submissions to be for ‘editor review’ or ‘peer review’. Although every effort will be made to reach a decision on peer-review articles quickly, delays might sometimes occur in this process.

(2) Shorter items of comment and information, and reviews of print and electronic materials, are also welcome, and should be in the 500–2,000 word range.

(3) Material is managed by email and attachment to and from the editors, englishtoday@cambridge.org.

(4) Subsidiary text and illustrative material (lists, specimens, photographs, diagrams, and cartoons, etc.) can be added to articles, where necessary in numbered panels and tables, and are encouraged. Any notes should be concise, and references/bibliography should be limited to the content of the paper. Website references should be in a list of their own after all other material.

(5) Every effort is made to retain distinctive usage and conventions, such as British or American spelling, special punctuation, and IPA symbols. Subheadings should be used in longer texts, and if necessary adjustments may be made smoothly. Any change of circumstances occurs, so that any necessary adjustments may be made smoothly.

(6) Notifications of the acceptance of an article for publication may be accompanied by copies of a Cambridge copyright release form, one to be retained, the other to be returned (completed and signed).

(7) Author(s) of a submission should provide 100–150 words of biography (per person).

(8) Prospective writers who are not regular readers of English Today should study the journal before submitting material. Preferably they should write/email to introduce themselves, proposing a topic and providing a plan or specimen. Every effort is made to reply quickly, but this is not always possible.

(9) Unsolicited articles that could interest readers of ET have been written that in the mind of the editors, there is not always possible.

(10) Unsolicited articles that could interest readers of ET have been written, some of which may or may not be published for the Editors to advise on how this might be done. Unsolicited articles that cannot be used are not returned.

(11) Contributors will be supplied with a PDF file of their contribution.
CONTENTS

Editorial
Editors’ comment ........................................... 2

Articles
Ebner, C. Blaming the media? Folk attitudes towards the state of the English language and its ‘wrongdoers’ 3
Choe, H. Identity formation of Filipino ESL teachers teaching Korean students in the Philippines .......................................... 5
Du, H. & Guan, H. Hindrances to the new teaching goals of College English in China 12
Bulley, M. A deserted desert 18
Xiaoqiong, B.H. Keep off the grass? No way! 21
Huang, I.-C. ‘Everybody learns English, and so do I’: The dominance of English and its effects on individuals 28
Wang, Y. Native English speakers’ authority in English 35
Botha, W. English and international students in China today 41
Pierini, F. Multilingualism and Englishization in international business communication: the case of some Italian wine producers 48
Murphy, M.L. (Un)separated by a common language? 56

Reviews
Rajagopalan, K. Review: The complex mosaic of Englishes 60
Coleman, J. Review: Vietnam War slang, as used by Rambo, desk jockeys and tail-end Charlies 61

How appropriate is it to ‘keep off the grass’?

- English in the service of Italian fine wine
- English getting worse?
- Blame the media?
- English-medium teaching for foreign students in China
- Delineating de- differences
- Reading rules ok in the Chinese university
- Why people learn English in Taiwan
- Who cares what native English speakers think?
- Filipino ESL teachers meet Korean EFL students
- Americans and Britons still divided by a common language?
- REVIEWS: English at large in the world
- Slang under fire