EDITORIAL POLICY

Parasitology publishes definitive papers on all aspects of pure and applied parasitology including biochemistry, molecular biology, immunology, genetics, ecology and physiology and also the application of new techniques, long-term epidemiology studies, advances in the understanding of life-cycles, chemotherapy and major systematic revisions. Papers should normally be full length with an explanatory introduction and detailed discussion of the findings reported. Shorter reports of particularly important findings will also be considered.

Front Cover illustration: The functional mechanism of anti-merozoite antibodies. Antibodies to merozoite surface proteins can mediate several effector mechanisms, including complement fixation due to cytophilic antibodies that result in merozoite lysis of C3b opsonization, inhibition of merozoite invasion into the RBC, phagocytosis of IgG-opsonized merozoites; production of reactive oxygen species (ROS) or Nitric oxide (NO) in response to opsonized parasites and antibody dependent cellular inhibition (ADCI) triggered by IgG-opsonized merozoites. From Healer et al., Vol. 145 (7), pp. 839-847.
