

Journal of FINANCIAL ECONOMICS

A Technical Forum for Advanced Research in Financial Economics

Areas covered by the JFE

The JFE publishes analytical, mathematical and empirical contributions of highest quality, dealing with:

- Portfolio analysis
- Theories of market equilibrium
- Corporate financial management
- Consumption and investment decisions under uncertainty
- The dynamic behavior of asset prices in the financial and real sectors, "efficient markets", and "random walks"
- Relationships between the financial and real sectors

The JFE also publishes shorter comments and notes, and in-depth book reviews of works of special interest. Language is English.

Board of Editors

The JFE was founded in 1974 by the Editor, Michael C. Jensen of the Graduate School of Management, University of Rochester, and by Co-Editors Eugene F. Fama, Graduate School of Business, University of Chicago, and Robert C. Merton, Sloan School of Management, Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It provides a forum for the finest minds currently working on the problems of finance.

In addition to Jensen, Fama and Merton, there are 25 Associate Editors, all major contributors to the literature of financial economics. They have set high standards for the JFE—last year over 75 % of the articles submitted for publication were rejected.

Who should subscribe

The JFE is not for the casual reader or novice. Professionals in banking, fund management, underwriting, and corporate financial management—together with academics and other researchers—find much of value in the JFE. And, all business and economic research libraries should have Volumes 1 through 3 of the JFE catalogued and on file. Back issues are still available.
