International Theory
A Journal of International Politics, Law and Philosophy

Editors
Duncan Snidal, University of Chicago, USA
Alexander Wendt, The Ohio State University, USA

International Theory (IT) promotes theoretical scholarship about the positive, legal, and normative aspects of world politics respectively. The journal is open to theory of absolutely all varieties and from all disciplines, provided it addresses problems of politics and pertains to the international. Scholarship is welcomed that uses evidence from the real world to advance theoretical arguments. However, the journal is intended as a forum where scholars can develop theoretical arguments in depth without an expectation of extensive empirical analysis. The goal is to promote communication and engagement across theoretical and disciplinary traditions.

Review of International Studies

Notes for contributors

Manuscripts
The Editors welcome submission of articles for consideration. The length required for articles is normally 9–12,000 words, articles over 12,000 words will only be considered if there is a clear rationale for the extra length. These are also sent to independent referees. The Review is a refereed journal, and contributors should allow time for the process of refereeing to take place. It is the author’s responsibility to provide the editors with an accurate total word count for all articles on submission.

Prospective authors should submit their manuscripts online via the website: <http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/ris>. Detailed instructions for submitting your manuscript online can be found at the submission website by clicking on the Instructions and Forms link in the top right hand of the screen; and then clicking on the Online Submission Instructions for Authors icon on the following page.

An abstract of 100 words plus a short biographical note (appropriate for Notes on Contributors) should accompany the manuscript. To guarantee anonymity, authors should include a title page without their names, and remove any reference to themselves from the manuscript.

The Editors reserve the right not to accept articles not presented in the house style, details of which are given below.

References and notes
These should be amalgamated and signalled serially within each article by superscript numerals. References and notes should be at the foot of each page. References should give full bibliographical details, including place of publication and publisher, at first mention. Thereafter the author’s surname and a short title should be used (not op. cit.). A cross-reference to the original citation, e.g. ‘(see n.4 above)’, may also be added if the short title reference is not immediately clear. The title of an article should appear in single inverted commas; the title of a book or journal should be underlined. Main words should be ‘first-letter’ capitalised in article and book titles.

References and notes should be typed in the form of the following examples:

5. Cumings, Japan, p. 216.

Subheadings
Contributors are encouraged to include up to two levels of subheading in articles to provide ‘signposts’ for readers. They should be typed flush left with only the first word and any proper names capitalised.

General
First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the editors a current address and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs, by airmail where appropriate, within three days of receiving them.

Contributors of accepted articles will be asked to assign their copyright, on certain conditions, to the British International Studies Association so that their interest may be safeguarded.

The aim of the Review of International Studies is to promote the analysis and understanding of international relations. Its scope is wide-ranging both in terms of subject matter and method. The RIS is designed to serve the needs of students and scholars interested in every aspect of international studies, including the political, economic, philosophical, legal, ethical, historical, military, cultural and technological dimensions of the subject. The editors of the RIS are receptive to the extensive array of methodologies now employed in the humanities and the social sciences.

The RIS was established in 1975 as the British Journal of International Studies and took its present title in 1981. It is the official journal of the British International Studies Association and is published in January, April, July and October, with an annual Special Issue.

The British International Studies Association

BISA was established in 1975 to encourage the teaching and research of international studies in Britain and to promote contact with scholars working in this field outside the UK. It holds an annual conference and organises working groups that meet throughout the year. BISA has close relationships with similar organisations in other countries. The Association publishes the RIS and a series of monographs on international relations with Cambridge University Press. Members of BISA receive a copy of each issue of the journal and a regular newsletter. Membership is open to individuals and institutions of any nationality and applications for membership of the Association should be sent to BISA Administrator, International Politics Building, UWA, Penglais, Aberystwyth SY23 3FE Tel: 01970 628672 email: bisa@aber.ac.uk

The BISA / RIS Prize

A prize is awarded annually for the best article to be published in that year’s RIS (not including the Special Issue). It is awarded at the annual BISA conference.
