The North American Conference on British Studies

The Journal of British Studies, founded in 1961, is published by the University of Chicago Press under the auspices of the North American Conference on British Studies (NACBS). It was the result of the imaginative generosity of a Trinity College alumnus, Frederick E. Hasler (Hon. LL.D. 1957), who contributed funds to the college for the specific purpose of establishing a learned periodical in the field of British history.

The North American Conference on British Studies is a scholarly society affiliated with the American Historical Association and open to anyone in the United States and Canada interested in British civilization in its several aspects: historical, archaeological, literary, artistic, political, and sociological. Its North American constituency comprises about eight hundred members drawn from the fifty states and ten provinces. Affiliated with the parent organization are seven regional conferences (New England, Middle Atlantic, South, Midwest, Western, Pacific Coast, and Northwest), each having its own offices and programs and with a combined membership of more than two thousand. The Conference convenes at least once a year in the autumn, usually in joint session with one of its regional affiliates. It seeks to encourage the serious study of British history, literature, and politics, as well as allied subjects, and among the general reading public through meetings, book prizes, and association with likeminded organizations in North America and Britain and through its publications program.

The Conference sponsors a wide variety of publications. Another journal, Albion, issued four times a year at Appalachian State University, Boone, North Carolina, and sent to all members of the parent organization, includes articles, proceedings of all meetings, and book reviews. The Conference's newsletter, the British Studies Intelligencer, also sent to members, is published at Georgetown University, and contains notices of meetings devoted to British studies, news of appointments, moves, and retirements, and notes on current publications and research in progress. Other publications appear periodically and will be noted at such times.

The Conference awards the following book prizes: the British Council Prize in the Humanities ($750), awarded through an annual grant by the British Embassy, Washington, D.C., in association with the British Council in the United Kingdom, and given to the best book published in the preceding year by a North American scholar in any aspect of British studies; the John Ben Snow Prize in History and the Social Sciences ($750), made possible by an annual grant from the Snow Foundation and given for a book in British history, politics, economics, or the history of ideas; and the Walter D. Love Memorial Prize ($150) for the best scholarly article in any field of British history. Nominations for any of these prizes may be made to the Executive Secretary of the NACBS, Professor Diane Willen, Department of History, Georgia State University. Authors must be residents of Canada or the United States, but their work may appear either in North America or abroad.

Information about membership in the NACBS can be found on the copyright page of this journal.

The Celebrated
Mary Astell
An Early English Feminist

Ruth Perry
Foreword by Catharine R. Stimpson

"Ruth Perry's new biography of Mary Astell (1666-1731) is an event in the history of women's studies. This is the first modern full-length study of a writer who has with justice been called 'the first feminist'. Perry discusses fully all of Astell's writings, not only her best-known work, A Serious Proposal to the Ladies. The discovery of new manuscript material is good news; the generous transcription of Astell's letters and poems is in itself sufficient to make this book indispensable to scholars."—Margaret Anne Doody, Princeton University

"This richly documented biography of Mary Astell, pioneer thinker and writer, will become a central text in the history of feminist thought. In probing Astell's ideological contradictions as a political conservative and a feminist analyst, Ruth Perry supplies us with an authentic, rare portrait of late-seventeenth-century life and the female intellectual experience."

A LOST LEFT
Three Studies in
Socialism and Nationalism
DAVID HOWELL
An incisive, multileveled history of the development of British socialism during the critical period 1914-28, a time in which leftists became less attentive to the salience of cultural distinctions and embraced nationalism. Howell’s study illustrates key moments and themes in the British experience of socialism and nationalism, and is based on the careers of James Connolly, John Maclean, and John Wheatley.

THE POLITICS OF MIRTH
Jonson, Herrick, Milton, Marvell,
and the Defense of Old Holiday Pastimes
LEAH S. MARCUS
“Marcus convincingly demonstrates that the early seventeenth century in England saw a remarkable politicizing of popular festivity. Her work shows the powerful relevance of this politics for the interpretation of the period’s literature and at the same time deepens our understanding of the politics.”

—Stephen Greenblatt, University of California, Berkeley

Amateurs, Photography, and the Mid-Victorian Imagination
Grace Seiberling

With Carolyn Bloore, in association with the International Museum of Photography at George Eastman House

"A fascinating and pioneering study of early British photography. It gives to the British effort what other scholars have done for the French. Seiberling maintains a good balance between technical investigation, pictorial analysis, and social history. The illustrations are of serious interest; several have not been reproduced before and these lend a significant dimension to those that are already considered classics."—Peter C. Bunnell, Princeton University
