NEW AND NOTEWORTHY

The Resurrection of Ireland

The Sinn Féin Party, 1916–1923

Michael Laffan

Between 1916 and 1923 Ireland experienced a political as well as a military revolution. This book examines how—after the Easter Rising of 1916—radical revolutionaries formed a precarious coalition with (relatively) moderate politicians. The new Sinn Féin party routed its enemies, cooperated uneasily with the underground Irish government, and achieved most of its objectives before disintegrating in 1922. Its rapid collapse should not distract from its achievements—in particular its role in “democratizing” the Irish revolution—while its successors since have dominated the political life of independent Ireland.

Literature, Politics and the English Avant-Garde

Nation and Empire, 1901–1918

Paul Peppis

In Literature, Politics and the English Avant-Garde, Paul Peppis reads texts by writers such as Ford Madox Ford, Wyndham Lewis, Dora Marsden, and Ezra Pound alongside English political discourse produced between the death of Victoria and the end of the Great War. He traces the impact of nation and empire on the avant-garde, arguing that Vorticism, England’s foremost avant-garde movement, used nationalism to advance literature and avant-garde literature to advance empire. By recovering these neglected aspects of avant-garde politics, Peppis’ book opens important new avenues for assessing modernist politics after the war.

Adam and Eve in Seventeenth-Century Thought

Philip C. Almond

This book offers a fascinating account of the central myth of Western culture—the story of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. Philip Almond examines the way in which the gaps, hints, and allusions within the Biblical story were filled out in seventeenth-century English thought. He creates a picture not only of the mainstream and marginal theological and philosophical readings of the Edenic tradition, but also of its central role in most of the major intellectual issues of seventeenth-century English life, both religious and secular.

The English in Rome, 1362–1420

Portrait of an Expatriate Community

Margaret Harvey

Centered on a study of the early archives of the Venerabile Collegio Inglese in Rome, this book attempts to place in its political, commercial and religious setting the English community that was in Rome between 1362, when the first English hospice for poor people and pilgrims was founded, and 1420. The book also uncovers a notable, although unsuccessful, attempt to forward English participation in commerce with Rome before 1420, revealing important links between the English laity in Rome and the city of London.

Restoration and Reform, 1153–1165

Recovery from Civil War in England

Graeme J. White

This book, covering the close of Stephen's reign (1135–54) and the early phase of Henry II's (1154–89), examines the government of England in the aftermath of civil war. It suggests that the extent of "anarchy" under Stephen has been exaggerated and that there was much administrative continuity from one reign to the next. Previous studies of Henry II's government have often neglected his earliest years, but here there is a reassessment of the significance of financial and judicial measures during 1163–65, as "restoration" gave way to "reform."

Published quarterly by
The University of Chicago Press

Since its inception in 1975, Signs: Journal of Women in Culture and Society has been recognized as the trailblazer in the field of women's and gender studies. In fact, Signs is consistently ranked among the top core journals in women's studies (source: SSCI Journal Citation Reports).

Signs' international scope includes articles from a wide range of disciplines in a variety of voices — articles engaging gender, race, culture, class, sexuality, and nation. The focus of essays ranges from cross-disciplinary theorizing and methodologies to specific disciplinary issues. Signs is a reliable resource for scholars, students, and professionals throughout the humanities, social sciences, education, law, and public policy.

- Unconventional perspectives

Signs encourages new methods of scholarship, analysis, and interpretation with articles that contest and reconfigure such founding terms as woman, culture, feminist, race, and nation.

- Unique attractions

Signs publishes major articles, disciplinary review essays, book reviews, special issues and sections, "U.S. and International Notes," and a "Comments and Reply" section, which provides a forum for lively debate between authors and readers. Signs takes its readers in provocative directions with cover designs that raise questions and promote energetic discussion. In fact, Signs recently won the annual award for the best journal design from the Council of Editors of Learned Journals (CELJ).

- Superb value

Your subscription to Signs ensures that you will keep pace with the latest interdisciplinary inquiry in the field, and it will energize your research with the most intense debate in women's studies—all at reasonable rates.

Regular one-year subscription rates: Individuals $38.00; Students $27.00; NWSA members $31.00; Institutions $133.00. Outside USA, please add $6.00 for postage. Canadian residents, please add postage and 7% GST.
