CONTENTS

Editorial
Editors’ comment 1

Articles

Lalić-Krstin, G and Silaški, N. From Brexit to Bregret 3
Hickey, R. ‘Yes, that’s the best’: Short front vowel lowering in English today 9
Yamaguchi, T and Petursson, M. Japanese English: Norm-dependency and emerging strategies 17
Brato, T. ‘Outdooring’ the Historical Corpus of English in Ghana 25
Schwyter, J.R. Ten years after the stroke: Me talk slightly less funny 35
Wang, H. and Yao, M. The discursive construction of English naming practice in Mainland China: A nationalism and authenticity perspective 39
Choe, H. and Son, E. Southeast Asian ESL countries as study abroad destinations: A Korean perspective 46

Reviews

Wu, X. and Lei, L. Practices versus perceptions of English use in multicultural communications 53
Zhu, J. What does it mean to teach English pronunciation in a globalized world? 55
Zhang, Y. and Lei, L. Dialectology with more sophisticated methods 58

New Brexit Speak

- Vowel Lowering in Present-Day English
- Ghana English
- Recovering from Aphasia
- English Names, Identity and Nationalism
- Study English Abroad in South East Asia
- Book Reviews
Notes for contributors

(1) Academic research-based articles can be of two types. Those intended for scrutiny by the journal editors alone can range up to 4,000 words in length. Those which authors wish to go forward to further scrutiny beyond the editorial team (that is, for peer review) can range up to 6,000 words. Authors should make it clear whether they wish their submissions to be for ‘editor review’ or ‘peer review’. Although every effort will be made to reach a decision on peer-review articles quickly, delays might sometimes occur in this process.

(2) Shorter items of comment and information, and reviews of print and electronic materials, are also welcome, and should be in the 500- to 2,000-word range.

(3) Material is managed by email and attachment to and from the editors, EnglishToday@cambridge.org

(4) Subsidory text and illustrative material (lists, specimens, photographs, diagrams, and cartoons, etc.) can be added to articles, where necessary in numbered panels and tables, and are encouraged. Any notes should be concise, and references/bibliography should be limited to the content of the paper. Website references should be in a list of their own after all other material.

(5) Every effort is made to retain distinctive usage and conventions, such as British or American spelling, special punctuation, and IPA symbols. Subheadings should be used in longer texts, and if necessary adjustments may be made smoothly. The Editors should be informed as soon as possible if any changes in format occur, so that any necessary adjustments may be made smoothly.

(6) Once a deadline for finalizing an article is agreed every effort should be made to keep to it, and the Editors should be informed as soon as possible if any change of circumstance occurs, so that any necessary adjustments may be made smoothly.

(7) Notification of the acceptance of an article for publication may be accompanied by copies of a Cambridge copyright release form, one to be retained, the other to be returned (completed and signed).

(8) The author(s) of a submission should provide 100-150 words of biography (per person).

(9) Prospective writers who are not regular readers of ET should study the journal before submitting material. Preferably they should write/email to introduce themselves, proposing a topic and providing a plan or specimen. Every effort is made to reply quickly, but this is not always possible.

(10) Unsolicited articles that could interest readers of ET but that were not written with the journal in mind are usually not suitable without a degree of rewriting and restructuring. Circumstances vary, and it may or may not be possible for the Editors to advise on how this might be done. Unsolicited articles that cannot be used are not returned.

(11) Contributors will be supplied with a PDF file of their contribution.