

Law & Society Review Condensed Style Sheet

Type manuscripts double-spaced on one side of the paper only. While manuscripts need not conform to this style sheet at the time of submission, all manuscripts must include an abstract, footnotes, and a list of references, and all accepted manuscripts must be revised by the authors to conform to the Review's style. The rules listed below supplement the manuscript information on the inside front cover of the Review. Authors are urged to consult Review issues in volume 26 or later for further illustrations. A detailed style sheet is available from the Editorial Office.

1. Abstracts. All manuscripts should include an abstract of not more than 100 words. No abstracts are required for review essays or comments.
2. Footnotes. Footnotes should be numbered sequentially (except for the author's footnote) and printed on pages immediately following the text (not at the foot of the page). They should contain only substantive comments and additional references not immediately relevant to the text.
3. Tables and Figures. Tables should approximate the appearance of printed tables. Figures should be camera ready; provide originals, not xerographic copies. Tables and/or figures should be placed at the end of the text, after footnotes, appendixes, and references. Their location within the text should be indicated as follows:

Table 1 about here

4. Citations. All notes that consist merely of supporting citations should be placed in parentheses in the text. For example:

In a thoughtful essay, Hayden (1991) . . .

OR

Media stories often portray the civil jury as generous (Daniels & Martin 1986:236; Hans 1989; Huber 1988).

The same general rules apply to footnote text.

5. References. References are placed at the end of the manuscript following the footnotes. The list should contain only those sources actually cited in text or notes. Give authors' names as they appear in the original source. For more than one publication by the same author, list them in chronological order, with the older item first. For more than one publication in one year by the same author, use small (lower-case) letters to distinguish them (e.g., 1970a, 1970b).

BOOKS: Last Name, First Name (year) Title of Book. City: Publisher.

Example: Lerner, Melvin J. (1980) Belief in a Just World. New York: Plenum.

CHAPTER IN EDITED VOLUME:

Example: Glazer, Nathan (1979) "The Judiciary and Social Policy," in L. Theberge, ed., The Judiciary in a Democratic Society. Lexington, MA: Lexington Books.

ARTICLES: Last Name, First Name (Year) "Title of Article," volume number Journal page numbers of article. (Give month or issue number if each issue is separately paginated.)

Examples: Padgett, John F. (1990) "Plea Bargaining in Prohibition," 24 Law & Society Rev. 413-50.

Brill, Steven, & James Lyons ((1986) "The Not-So-Simple Crisis," American Lawyer 12-15 (May).

UNPUBLISHED PAPERS:

Example: Lofquist, William S. (1991) "The Development of Organizational Probation." Presented at American Society of Criminology annual meeting, San Francisco.

All cases cited in text are listed under "Cases Cited" following the References. All statutes cited are listed under "Statutes Cited." For style for cases and statutes, see A Uniform System of Citation.

GRADUATE and LAW STUDENT AWARD

CALL FOR NOMINATIONS FOR YEAR 2001

The Law and Society Association is seeking nominations for its Graduate and Law Student Award which will be presented at the Association's Annual Meeting in Budapest, Hungary, in July 2001. The award will be offered to the nominated graduate or law student paper that best represents outstanding law and society research. Submissions should be of a length and style suitable for publication in a scholarly journal. Papers that have been excerpted from dissertations should be revised to stand alone; that is, they should include a clear account of the theory, methods and data (as appropriate) upon which the excerpt is based. Papers co-authored with faculty members are not eligible. The prize includes $100 cash and up to $400 toward travel cost to attend the 2001 Law and Society Annual Meeting.

We seek to expand the pool of submissions, and we urge you to send along graduate and law papers you admire. Specifically, we ask you to recall outstanding work you have read last academic year, as well as papers you will receive this semester. Papers that have already been published are eligible for the award. We intend to be inclusive of all work that examines law in culture and society including social scientific, interpretive, historical and jurisprudential scholarship.

To Have a Student's Work Considered for the Award:

1. A non-student member of the Law and Society Association must make the nomination.
2. The paper should have been written between September 1999 and January 2001 by matriculated graduate or law students at any (U.S. or non-U.S.) institution of higher education.
3. The paper must be submitted to the Committee on Student Awards. The Committee includes Don Brenneis, chair (University of California, Santa Cruz), Michael Musheno (Arizona State University), Susan Will (John Jay College of Criminal Justice), Vicki Schultz (Yale University), and Ryken Grattet (University of California, Davis).
4. If it is possible to submit the paper electronically to the address below, it would be particularly appreciated by the committee. Otherwise, a paper copy can be sent to the mail address below. The paper must be submitted by the deadline, February 1, 2001.

The Starr
Report Disrobed
Fedwa Malti-Douglas

How do Walt Whitman's Leaves of Grass, Arthur Koestler's Darkness at Noon, a Hugo Boss tie or Vox, a novel about phone sex, fit into the legal discourse of the Starr Report? Fraught with assumptions about gender and sexuality, the report reflects a strategy to use Clinton's "body natural" to undermine his "body politic."

"Writing with wit, verve, and sharp perception, Malti-Douglas provides fresh ways of understanding the Starr Report."

Law and History Review

“The best place to find out what an exciting field legal history has become. I read every issue with pleasure and a sense of discovery.” — Robert W. Gordon, Professor of Law, Stanford University; Visiting Professor, Yale Law School

“The most invigorating new scholarship appears regularly in Law and History Review. It is far too interesting a journal to limit its readers to legal historians; intellectual historians and social historians will want to explore its riches.” — Linda Kerber, Professor of History, University of Iowa

Law and History Review

- Encompasses American, English, European, and ancient legal history
- Features articles, essays, and commentaries by international authorities
- Reviews important new books on legal history
- Provides legal and social historians with distinguished scholarship in an increasingly recognized field

The Strategic Constitution

Robert D. Cooter

Making, amending, and interpreting constitutions is a political game with high stakes. Robert Cooter argues that constitutional theory should trouble itself less with literary analysis and arguments over founders' intentions and focus much more on the real-world consequences of various constitutional provisions and choices.

Pooling the best available theories from economics and political science, particularly those developed from game theory, Cooter's economic analysis of constitutions fundamentally recasts a field of growing interest and importance.

"This is a superb synthesis, application, and extension of four decades of research in economics and political science on the effects of formal political institutions on economics, law, and politics. . . . The scope of the book is simply breathtaking."—Geoffrey Garrett, Yale University

Reform in the Making

The Implementation of Social Policy in Prison

Ann Chih Lin

Is it time to give up on rehabilitating criminals? Record numbers of Americans are going to prison, and most of them will eventually return to society with a high chance of becoming repeat offenders. But a decision to abandon rehabilitation programs now would be premature warns Ann Chih Lin. By offering an in-depth look at common rehabilitation programs currently in operation—education, job training, and drug treatment—and examining how they are used or misused, Lin offers a practical approach to understanding their high failure rate and how they could be improved.

"Ann Chih Lin reopens the debate on rehabilitation while recognizing all the pitfalls that occurred under the concept of rehabilitatio. . . ."—Kathleen McDermott, Columbia University

The International Journal of Penology

Editor-in-Chief David Garland School of Law and Department of Sociology, New York University, USA

Managing Editor Andrew Coyle International Centre for Prison Studies, King's College, London, UK

Punishment & Society is a new international journal that will provide an interdisciplinary forum for research and scholarship dealing with punishment, penal institutions and penal control.

Published twice in 1999
Published quarterly from 2000
January, April, July, October
ISSN: 1462-4745

It aims to advance and refine the impressive body of work that has emerged in this field over the last two decades, and to be a source of informed commentary and criticism regarding the penal policies and practices of our time.

The journal will publish high quality papers that deal with key issues in penal theory, penal law and penal practice, and with the philosophical, cultural or historical aspects of punishment that are of interest to a wide international readership.

Ann Arnett Ferguson

Bad Boys

Public Schools in the Making of Black Masculinity

Arnett interviews eleven- and twelve-year-old boys who have been identified as being "bound for jail," along with teachers, principals, truant officers, and relatives of the students. She constructs a disturbing picture of how educators' belief in a "natural difference" of black children and the "criminal inclination" of black males shapes decisions that single out black males as being at risk for failure and punishment. cloth $29.95

LAW AND SOCIETY ASSOCIATION

The Law and Society Association has an international membership and is open to persons who are interested in the interdisciplinary study of law, society and legal processes. Members of the Association bring training in law, sociology, political science, psychology, anthropology, economics, history, and other related areas to better understand functioning legal systems in their social and historical context. Although they share a common commitment to developing theoretical and empirical understandings of law, members pursue widely varying interests. Whatever the issue, there is an openness in the Association toward exploring the contours of law through a variety of research methods and modes of analysis. The Annual Meeting draws participants from the U.S. and around the world. In 2001, the Association will meet jointly with the Research Committee on Sociology of Law (ISA) in Budapest, Hungary, July 4 - 7.

LSA is committed to the development of the field and to training new generations in law and society scholarship. Didactic workshops on research methods and workshop for graduate students take place just prior to the Annual Meeting each year, and for eight years a 5-day Summer Institute has been offered for advanced graduate students and faculty who are new to the field. Members of the Association and other leading scholars volunteer their teaching in these programs.

Membership in the Association is by calendar year and includes subscriptions to Law & Society Review and the LSA Newsletter.
