Benavides' Memorial of 1630

Translated by PETER P. FORRESTAL, C.S.C.
Annotated by CYPRIAN J. LYNCH, O.F.M.

Fray Alonso de Benavides, closing his term as Custos of the Franciscan Missions of New Mexico, in 1630 submitted to Philip IV of Spain a report on the problems and progress of his Order's labors in that vast territory. This memorial was so singularly interesting that it was immediately issued by the royal printery in Madrid and shortly translated into several European languages. Presenting an unforgettable picture of seventeenth-century New Mexico, Benavides' description of the life and customs, the folkways and the religious ceremonies of the Apaches and the Pueblos is one of the prime sources for our knowledge of the aborigines of the Southwest United States.

The specialist will find this an indispensable source for the history of the Spanish colonization effort in America; for his benefit, it is greatly enhanced by the well-prepared introduction and notes. The general reader will be equally fascinated by the keen observations and the wealth of information furnished in this report by an extremely alert observer whose lot was cast among a strange and primitive people.

THE AMERICAS
to be indexed in the
INTERNATIONAL INDEX TO PERIODICALS

The editors of THE AMERICAS are happy to announce that their review has been elected by vote of the subscribing librarians to be indexed in the International Index to Periodicals, published by the H. W. Wilson Co., of New York.

The International Index includes a select number of scholarly periodicals. Since its inception in 1907, it has been the leading guide to periodical literature and heavily relied upon by librarians, scholars, and research workers.

It is hoped that with the advent of this new honor THE AMERICAS will increase and broaden its influence in its attempts to strengthen the cultural bonds among the peoples of our hemisphere.
