Russian Ideologies of Empire and the Path to War with Japan

David Schimmelpenninck van der Oye

"A major contribution to our understanding of the making of foreign policy in late Imperial Russia."—Mark Steinberg

- What drove Russia to its disastrous war with Japan in 1904? Schimmelpenninck argues that the conflict came about because of St. Petersburg's erratic and confused diplomacy. The key to understanding Russia's actions in the Far East, he explains, lies in the ideas of those who sought to impose their visions of imperial destiny on the Pacific. Drawing from previously inaccessible archival sources, he addresses an important aspect of Russian national identity at a crucial point in history.

Hungarian Intellectuals in Exile and the Challenge of Communism

Lee Congdon

"Pioneering!... A stimulating and skillfully written analysis of the Hungarian émigré political left." —Joseph Held

- In exile first from their native land and then from adopted homes in Germany and Austria, Hungarian émigré intellectuals led some of the key political debates of their day. They spoke in one voice to condemn Nazism, but their attitudes toward Communism differed. Congdon interprets the experience of two generations of Hungarians in exile, illuminating their ideas in the context of the modern crisis of belief.

Days of a Russian Noblewoman

The Memories of Anna Labzina,
1758–1821

Edited and translated by

Gary Marker and Rachel May

"Fascinating.... A valuable source for the study of Russian women's history."

—Elise Kimerling Wirtschafter

- Translated into English for the first time, Anna Labzina's memoir and diary offer unparalleled glimpses into male and female sensibilities in Russia's age of enlightenment. Labzina vividly recounts the abuses of her first husband and traces her spiritual growth through her involvement with Freemasonry and religious revival during her marriage to Aleksandr Labzin. Well educated by the standards of the day, she reveals the private life of a noblewoman in a male-centered society.

Building Capitalism

The Transformation of the Former Soviet Bloc

Anders Åslund

This book offers the most comprehensive empirical analysis of the economic transformation of the countries comprising the former Soviet bloc during the first decade after communism. It debunks many myths, seeing transition as a struggle between radical reformers and those thriving on rent seeking.

The Making of the Slavs

History and Archaeology of the Lower Danube Region, c. 500-700

Florin Curta

This book offers a new approach to the problem of Slavic ethnicity in southeastern Europe between c. 500 and c. 700. The author shows how Byzantine authors “invented” the Slavs, in order to make sense of political and military developments taking place in the Balkans.

Reshaping National Intelligence for an Age of Information

Gregory F. Treverton

“This highly readable analysis by a former head of intelligence examines the challenge of transforming the Intelligence Community with the end of the Cold War and the global spread of technology. Sharply argued, it is timely—and controversial. It contains brilliant insights and some harsh judgments—perhaps too harsh—yet it lays bare the problems of intelligence in the decades ahead. Well worth careful study.”

Dostoevsky and the Christian Tradition

George Pattison and Diane Oenning Thompson, Editors

This collection brings together Western and Russian perspectives on the issues raised by the religious element in Dostoevsky's work. The essays cover such topics as temptation, his use of the gospels, the Russian tradition of the veneration of icons, as well as reading aloud, and dialogism.

The Donald W. Treadgold Papers

In Russian, East European, and Central Asian Studies

The following issues of The Donald W. Treadgold Papers are now available (international orders add $1.00, WA residents add 8.6% sales tax):

Local Self-Government and the State in Modern Russia

Thomas E. Porter and John F. Young
($7.50)

This co-authored study reviews the history of local government reform in modern Russia and highlights the reluctance of political institutions (manifest both in late Imperial Russia and throughout the Soviet period) to foster the development of local self-government.

Military Threats and Threat Assessment in Russia's New Defense Doctrine and Security Concept

Stephen Blank ($7.50)

Russia's leadership responds to perceived threats with forceful solutions, imperial adventures, and a general hard-line approach to world affairs; this threatens regional security as well as democracy and security inside Russia.

Catholic Power and Catholicization as a Component of Modern Polish National Identity, 1863-1918

Konrad Sadkowski ($7.50)

Sadkowski argues that the Catholic Church employed the modern Polish national identity which emerged during the late 19th century as a means to maintain power in Polish society.

Structure and Exposure: Dilemmas of Democracy in Russia's Television Market

Ellen Mickiewicz ($7.50)

Mickiewicz examines the interaction between shifting intrusiveness on the part of the Russian government and other media owners and Soviet era "newswatching" habits that effectively expand the range and kind of information which is actually assimilated.

RUSSIA AND THE RUSSIANS

A HISTORY

GEOFFREY HOSKING

“Hosking...offers a comprehensive survey from the beginnings of Kievan Rus through Russia’s recent independence, emphasizing the impact of relations between Russians and non-Russians... This book’s strength lies in its revealing Russia’s continuities. The result compares favorably with some of the best Russian histories of recent decades while also consolidating new scholarship. Highly recommended.”

—Zachary Irwin, Library Journal

“For the thousand years of its recorded existence, Russia’s history has been as dramatic, tragic, and inspiring as that of any nation, exerting a perennial attraction that cries for the one-volume introduction Hosking is well equipped to provide. His book is especially welcome because he links the Communist era, now that it is over, to the enduring themes of the Russian experience... This is a high-quality overview.”

BASIC HISTORY OF MODERN HUNGARY, 1867-1999

by Béla K. Király

Orig. Ed. 2001 (Anvil) 216 pp. ISBN 0-89464-950-7 Paper $19.50

Dr. Király's book describes 132 years of Hungary's history and explains the causes and effects of ten changes of regimes. During the first five decades, Habsburg bureaucrats made decisions on Hungary's foreign policy and most of her economy. After 1939, Nazis dictated policies, occupied the country, and superimposed a Nazi regime. From 1944, the Soviet Union occupied and ruled Hungary for more than half a century. Only in 1990 did Hungary enjoy full sovereignty with complete freedom for her citizens. Democracy prevails in Hungary 2000. Dr. Király was an eyewitness and/or participant (as a high military or government official) for almost half the period under consideration.
