Åsa Berggren has been working in developer-funded archaeology in Scania in Sweden for the past 17 years. She defended her Ph.D. on the topic of wetland depositions and the concepts of sacrifice and ritual in 2010 at Lund University. She is currently working on research in connection with the Çatalhöyük Research Project concerning the production of knowledge in archaeological field practice.

John Chapman has been a Reader in Archaeology at Durham University since 1996. His research interests include archaeological theory, landscape, place and settlement, mortuary studies, the deliberate fragmentation of bodies and objects, and the aesthetics of colour and brilliance. He has worked in the Mesolithic, Neolithic and Copper Age of south-east Europe and codirected major field projects in Neothermal Dalmatia (now Croatia) and the Upper Tisza Project (Hungary). His current fieldwork in Ukraine targets the Tripolye mega-sites, the largest settlements in 4th-millennium Europe.

David Fontijn is Associate Professor in European Archaeology at the Faculty of Archaeology, University of Leiden, the Netherlands. His research focuses on the European Bronze Age and Early Iron Age, in particular the exchange and deposition of metalwork, and on the archaeology of so-called ‘ritual’ landscapes. He is the author of the award-winning book Sacrificial landscapes. Recent books are Living near the dead (2010) and Iron Age echoes (co-edited 2011). He was senior research fellow in the excellence cluster ‘TOPOI’ in Berlin, and currently leads an NWO-funded multidisciplinary project entitled Ancestral Mounds, dealing with the archaeology of prehistoric burial mounds.

Duncan Garrow is a Lecturer in Archaeology at the University of Liverpool. His research interests include the later prehistory of Britain and north-west Europe, the Mesolithic–Neolithic transition, long-term histories of deposition, the integration of developer-funded and university-based archaeology, archaeological theory and interdisciplinary approaches to material culture. His book Technologies of enchantment? Exploring Celtic art: 400 BC to AD 100 (co-authored with Chris Gosden) came out in August 2012.

Svend Hansen is the Director of the Eurasia Department of the German Archaeological Institute and Honorary Professor for Prehistoric Archaeology at the Freie Universität in Berlin. His research on mainly the Neolithic and the Bronze Age has a social-archaeology focus, with a specific interest in the circumstances of technological innovations and prehistoric technology. He has recently conducted extensive excavations at Neolithic and Copper Age sites in Romania and Georgia. He is member of the Forging Identities: The Mobility of Culture in Bronze Age Europe network of the European Commission, where he explores the topic of Bronze Age hoards as indicators of ‘other places’.

Nick Shepherd is Associate Professor of African Studies and Archaeology at the University of Cape Town, and is Head of the African Studies Unit. He is joint Editor-in-Chief of the journal Archaeologies. Journal of the World Archaeological Congress. In 2004–5 he was based at Harvard University as a Mandela Fellow. He was a Visiting Professor at Brown University in 2008, and at the University of Basel in 2009. He has published widely on questions of archaeology and society in Africa, and on questions of public history, memory and heritage. His books include Desire lines. Space, memory and identity in the postapartheid city (2007, with Martin Hall and Noeleen Murray), and New South African keywords (2008, with Steven Robins).

Julian Thomas is Professor of Archaeology at the University of Manchester. His research interests lie in the Neolithic of Britain and Europe, and the theory and philosophy of archaeology. He is the author of Understanding the Neolithic (1999) and Archaeology and modernity (2004), and he has directed archaeological fieldwork in south-west Scotland, the Stonehenge area and Herefordshire.

Barbara L. Voss is Associate Professor of Anthropology at Stanford University, where she is affiliated with the Stanford Archaeology Center, feminist studies, urban studies, and Asian American studies. Her research focuses on the dynamics and outcomes of historical transnational encounters in the Americas, with a focus on the colonization of and immigration to California. Her publications include Archaeologies of sexuality (co-edited with Rob Schmidt, 2000), The archaeology of ethnogenesis. Race and sexuality in colonial San Francisco (2008) and The archaeology of colonialism. Intimate encounters and sexual effects (co-edited with El Casella, 2012).

Ancient Mesoamerica

Editors

William R. Fowler, Vanderbilt University, USA

Kenneth G. Hirth, Pennsylvania State University, USA

Geoffrey G. McCafferty, University of Calgary, Canada

Ancient Mesoamerica is the international forum for the method, theory, substance and interpretation of Mesoamerican archaeology, art history and ethnohistory. The journal publishes papers chiefly concerned with the Pre-Columbian archaeology of the Mesoamerican region, but also features articles from other disciplines including ethnohistory, historical archaeology and ethnoarchaeology. Topics covered include the origins of agriculture, the economic base of city states and empires, political organisation from the Formative through the Early Colonial periods, the development and function of early writing, and the use of iconography to reconstruct ancient religious beliefs and practices.

Cambridge Archaeological Journal

Published for the McDonald Institute for Archaeological Research

Editor

John Robb, University of Cambridge, UK

The Cambridge Archaeological Journal (CAJ) is the leading journal for cognitive and symbolic archaeology. It provides a forum for innovative archaeological research and theoretical discussion, with particular focus on the role and development of human symbolic capacities, beliefs and practices. Area coverage is world-wide, and CAJ covers the entire span from human origins to recent history. Specific topics covered in recent issues include: the use of cultural neurophenomenology for the understanding of Maya religious belief, agency and the individual, new approaches to rock art and shamanism, the significance of prehistoric monuments, ritual behaviour on Pacific Islands, and body metamorphosis in prehistoric boulder artworks. In addition to major articles and shorter notes, the Cambridge Archaeological Journal includes special topical sections and review features on significant recent books. The journal has a distinguished international editorial board of scholars of wide repute.

The Classical Quarterly

Published for The Classical Association

Editors

Rhiannon Ash, Merton College, Oxford, UK

John Wilkins, University of Exeter, UK

The Classical Quarterly has a reputation for publishing the highest quality classical scholarship for nearly 100 years. It publishes research papers and short notes in the fields of language, literature, history and philosophy. Two substantial issues (around 300 pages each) of The Classical Quarterly appear each year, in May and December. Given the quality and depth of the articles published in The Classical Quarterly, any serious classical library needs to have a copy on its shelves.

International Journal of Cultural Property

Published for the International Cultural Property Society

Editor

Alexander A. Bauer, Queens College, CUNY, USA

International Journal of Cultural Property provides a vital, international, and multidisciplinary forum for the broad spectrum of views surrounding cultural property, cultural heritage, and related issues. Its mission is to develop new ways of dealing with cultural property debates, to be a venue for the proposal or enumeration of pragmatic policy suggestions, and to be accessible to a wide audience of professionals, academics, and lay readers. This peer-reviewed journal publishes original research papers, case notes, documents of record, chronicles, conference reports, and book reviews. Contributions come from the wide variety of fields implicated in the debates -- law, anthropology, public policy, archaeology, art history, preservation, ethics, economics, museum-, tourism-, and heritage studies -- and from a variety of perspectives and interests -- indigenous, Western, and non-Western; academic, professional and amateur; consumers and producers -- to promote meaningful discussion of the complexities, competing values, and other concerns that form the environment within which these disputes exist.

Guidelines for contributors

Archaeological dialogues is a broad, peer-reviewed journal for debating archaeology. Articles should be accessible to an audience which may be unfamiliar with the specific period and region discussed. Transparent writing is encouraged above abstruse reasoning. Jargon should be avoided and succinct writing is appreciated. We value good illustrations. These can include photographs, line-drawings and maps.

Procedure

The Archaeological dialogues publishing process includes the following steps: submission, evaluation, decision (acceptance, modification or rejection), copy-editing, proof-reading, publication, and distribution. In order to guarantee efficient and quality publication contributors are requested to adhere closely to the following guidelines:

- All manuscripts should be written in English. Manuscripts that seriously fail to conform to the guidelines will be returned to authors for revision before they will be considered.
- When submitting a contribution to Archaeological dialogues, it will be acknowledged on receipt. One of the editors will be the contact person for a paper throughout the entire process. If scope, quality and language are appropriate it will be sent to two anonymous referees for expert opinion. Usually within two or three months, the editors will inform you of their final decision. In the case of rejection, an editorial justification will be provided, including the original referees' reports. In the case of acceptance – which may be conditional on revisions – one of the editors will guide you through the rest of the publishing process. Before an article goes into print, authors will receive a copy of the proofs to check. The entire procedure between submission and appearance should take less than a year.

Types of contributions

Archaeological dialogues essentially publishes two types of papers, namely 'discussion articles' and 'notes'. The former are accompanied by published comments and a reply. Discussion articles are usually longer, they can be up to 8–9000 words whereas notes typically are around 4–5000 words. Discussion articles usually take longer to appear in print because of the time required for comments and reply. Review essays and interviews are usually solicited by the editorial board, but scholars with suggestions in this direction are encouraged to contact us.

Submission of contributions

Manuscripts are preferably received by email (dialogues@cambridge.org). Alternatively, a CD and hardcopy may be sent to: Archaeological Dialogues, c/o Jeremia Pelgrom, Koninklijk Nederlands Instituut Rome, Via Omero 10/12, 00197 ROMA, ITALY.

Authors are solely responsible not only for the contents of their manuscripts, but also for securing any legal rights or permissions to publish submitted material, including copyright-protected materials. The appropriate acknowledgements should be given in captions, endnotes, or elsewhere. Manuscripts should not be submitted to (nor should they have been published in) any other journal or publication.

See <http://uk.cambridge.org/journals/ard> for an extended version of the guidelines for contributors.

This journal issue has been printed on FSC-certified paper and cover board. FSC is an independent, non-governmental, not-for-profit organization established to promote the responsible management of the world's forests. Please see www.fsc.org for information.

Archaeological Dialogues is indexed in the Thomson Reuters Arts and Humanities Citation Index.
