

A Concise Pronouncing Dictionary of British and American English

J. WINDSOR LEWIS

The Concise Pronouncing Dictionary of British and American English is a unique dictionary prepared especially for users of English as a foreign language. Using the alphabet of the International Phonetic Association and following Professor A. C. Gimson's new transcription in a slightly simplified form, it records the fluent, spontaneous everyday usage of educated speakers in Britain and America whose speech is least restricted in terms of geographical region or social grouping.

Phonetic transcriptions are given for about 24,000 words with common affixes like -able, -ability, -ant, -ation, -ment, fore- and extra- to give the user a much larger vocabulary reference. A selection of British and American proper nouns and common abbreviations is also included.

Special attention has been given to ease and speed of use. Every word is given a separate, strictly alphabetic entry. If a word has more than one spelling, all the information is given at each one. A full Introduction explains the arrangement and content, trends of change in pronunciation, word rhythmic patterns, stress notation and compound words. The Key to symbols, notes on the arrangement of entries and British and American vowels, consonants and diphthong charts are in easy reference form on the end papers.

English-Teaching Information Centre (ETIC)

The English-Teaching Information Centre is maintained by the British Council as a study centre and clearing-house for information on all aspects of teaching English as a second or foreign language overseas. Since its foundation in 1961 the Centre has developed a network of communication with individuals and institutions in Great Britain and more than 120 other countries. Its services are available to all who are professionally concerned – students, teachers, trainers of teachers, research workers, administrators or writers. Enquiries should be addressed to:

Centre for Information on Language Teaching and Research (CILT)

The Centre for Information on Language Teaching and Research, established in 1966, is an independent foundation supported by grants from the Department of Education and Science, the Scottish Education Department, and the Ministry of Education, Northern Ireland. It coordinates and provides information about all aspects of modern languages (including English as a second language) and their teaching in Great Britain. Further information can be obtained from:

ETIC and CILT, which occupy adjacent accommodation, maintain jointly the Language-Teaching Library (about 23,000 volumes), where files of journals covered by Language-Teaching Abstracts may be consulted. The library also includes an audio-visual section with facilities for hearing and viewing teaching materials; a register of relevant current research is available for reference.

In addition to joint publications such as Language-Teaching Abstracts and A Language-Teaching Bibliography, each centre issues publications from time to time in its own name.
