INSTRUCTIONS FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Editorial policy
Financial History Review, published by Cambridge University Press on behalf of the European Association for Banking and Financial History e.V., is an international journal that publishes articles, reviews, and book reviews covering research in banking, finance, and insurance. Contributions are invited on all aspects of financial and economic history, with a focus on the period 1500 to 2014 and a particular emphasis on the relationship between financial development and economic performance. The journal particularly encourages submissions from young scholars.

Articles should normally be of 8,000 words including footnotes, title and any graphical or other illustrative material (a graph occupying a page is deemed equivalent to 2,000 words). The journal is published in English and contributions should be submitted in that language. Authors whose native language is other than English are encouraged to seek assistance from a professional native English translator for a preliminary version prior to submission.

Submissions
Manuscripts may be submitted through the online submission facility available on the Review’s web page:http://journals.cambridge.org/FHR. Authors are required to upload:

1. A blinded copy of the manuscript. The cover page of the document should include the paper’s title, a short abstract (max. 200 words), a short list of keywords, and 3-5 JEL codes. Please note that you should supply a MORD and EKT form for the main text body (including tables, bibliographical references, appendices) and a different single document for PDF for Tables and Figures.

2. A statement of whether the paper will be written in a language other than English and if not being considered for publication elsewhere. Upon acceptance of a paper, the author will be asked to sign copyright (on certain conditions) to the European Association for Banking and Financial History e.V.

Contributors are responsible for obtaining permission to reproduce any material in which they do not own copyright, to be used in both print and electronic media, and for ensuring that the appropriate acknowledgements are included in their manuscript.

Preparation of manuscripts
1. Manuscripts should be typed double-spaced throughout on A4, 20x25.4 cm, 12-point, Times Roman. Margins should be left on all sides.
2. Pages should be numbered consecutively, beginning with the title page, the page number being placed shallowly at the top right-hand corner of the page.
3. Footnotes should be typed double-spaced numbered consecutively and grouped together at the end of the manuscript. Footnotes will appear in the journal at the bottom of each printed page. Footnotes will only be used to contain matters of source citation. Substantive footnotes, involving commentary or argument, should be avoided, as they may impede the reader’s proper comprehension of the text. If an elaborate commentary on sources is required, it cannot be incorporated within the body of the article, it should form an appendix to the article (to be included in the total word count).
4. Tables, maps and figures should be numbered sequentially with Arabic numerals, that figures within the text, e.g. Table 1, Map 1, Figure 2. Appropriate placement in the body of the text should be indicated in the text as, 'please place Table 1 here next'. Contributors should figure fully within the stylistic conventions we set out below, when writing the final version of their articles. Copy-editing is undertaken at this stage, and authors will be expected to make such amendments as are required.

5. Contributors retain the right to receive a correction proof for publication solely on the grounds that it does not negatively influence the contribution.

Corrections
1. Spelling: British spelling is preferred, using -is in words with alternative -eis/-eis (e.g., American). However, American spelling will be accepted.

2. Foreign words or phrases in an English sentence should be underlined (for title, except for proper names, or quotations or words in common use).

3. Quotations: follow the pronunciation, capitalization and spelling of the original source. Within the body of the text an article a quotation should begin and, with single quotation marks only, end with single quotation marks. Quotations of more than ten (max. 20) words should be in italics. The sign ‘%’ should be used in footnotes and tables. Standard fractions can be used.

4. Numbers: spell out numbers up to ten, but use Arabic numerals for numbers in sequences; 11-99 in words, and 100 and above in digits. Percentages should be given in figures, with the words ‘per cent’ spelled out, e.g. 60%.

5. Dates: use the full date in non-specialized text (e.g. ‘1948’), and (for example, ‘2014–15’). Do not use ‘2014–15’ in specialized text (e.g. ‘1948’). The Great Reversal: the politics of financial development in the 19th century.

8. Tables, graphs, and maps should be original. They should include a short title, be numbered in order of appearance and provide clear and relevant information.

9. Spelling:

   a. French words and phrases in an English sentence should be underlined (for title, except for proper names, or quotations or words in common use).

   b. French words and phrases in an English sentence should be underlined (for title, except for proper names, or quotations or words in common use).

10. Figures should be original. They should include a short title, be numbered in order of appearance and provide clear and relevant information.

Proof
Typeset galley or page proofs should only be changed at proof stage. The publisher reserves the right to change authors for non-standardised articles.

Obligations
Authors will receive a PDF editor of their published article.
