

Notes on Contributors

P. T. Geach

Emeritus Professor of Logic, University of Leeds.

Antony Flew

Emeritus Professor of Philosophy, University of Reading. He is now attached to the Social Philosophy and Policy Center, Bowling Green State University. His latest book is David Hume: Philosopher of Moral Science.

T. S. Champlin

Lecturer in Philosophy, University of Hull. His article 'Self-deception: A Reflexive Dilemma' was published in Philosophy in July 1977.

T. Foster Lindley

Professor of Philosophy and Computer Science, University of Connecticut. His article 'Is it the Coin that is Biased?' was published in Philosophy in October 1981.

Udo Etuk

Senior Lecturer in Philosophy, University of Cross River State, Uyo, Nigeria.

J. L. Walls

Graduate Student in Philosophy, University of Notre Dame.

Ted Honderich

Professor of Philosophy, University College London. His article 'Causes and If p, even if x, still q' was published in Philosophy in July 1982.

Rosemary Rodd

Part-time Graduate Student, The Open University.

John Wilson

Lecturer in Educational Studies, University of Oxford, and Fellow of Mansfield College. His discussion article 'The Purposes of Retribution' was published in Philosophy in October 1983.

Russell A. Jacobs

Associate Professor of Philosophy, Washburn University, Topeka, Kansas

Donald Mackinnon

Lecturer in Educational Studies, The Open University. He is not to be confused, but will be confused, with Professor Donald MacKinnon of Aberdeen and Cambridge. Readers are asked to note that Mr Mackinnon uses a small 'k' where Professor MacKinnon uses a capital 'K'.