

Notes on Contributors

Fiona Ellis

Fiona Ellis has been a lecturer at Heythrop College since 2004, and before that worked for several years in Oxford. She is also the Director for the Centre for Philosophy of Religion which has been launched this year.

Sandy Berkovski

Sandy Berkovski teaches philosophy at Bilkent University, Ankara. His research interests include philosophy of language, ethics, and philosophy of science.

Arnon Keren

Arnon Keren is a lecturer at the Department of Philosophy, University of Haifa. His areas of interest include epistemology, social epistemology, and ethics. His recent research has focussed on the epistemology of testimony, and especially on the concepts of epistemic trust and epistemic authority.

Mary Midgley

Mary Midgley was a senior lecturer in Philosophy at Newcastle University. Her books include Beast and Man: The Roots of Human Nature (1978), Heart and Mind: The Varieties of Moral Experience (1981), Animals and Why They Matter (1983), and most recently The Solitary Self: Darwin and the Selfish Gene (2011).

Chris Bessemans

Chris Bessemans is currently writing his doctoral dissertation at Katholieke Universiteit, Leuven on the moral philosophy of Aurel Kolnai. He is a Fellow of the Research Foundation – Flanders (FWO).

Soran Reader

Soran Reader is director of the Centre for Ethical Philosophy (CEP) and a Reader in Philosophy at Durham University. She is the editor of The Philosophy of Need and author of Needs and Moral Necessity.