AN INTRODUCTION TO F. D. MAURICE'S THEOLOGY

W. Merlin Davies

30s. net

The author's purpose is to show how Maurice's teaching reveals a wholeness in grasp of the Christian faith and life. To realise this purpose the reader is given an interpretive abridgement of The Kingdom of God, and an examination of the rare Faith of the Liturgy and the Doctrine of the XXXIX Articles.

BUDDHIST DEVOTION AND MEDITATION

An objective Description and Study

Pe Maung Tin

21s. net

This volume by a former professor of Pali at Rangoon, who is also a Christian helps the occidental reader to appreciate the actual religious practice of Burmese Buddhists. Texts used by Buddhists are translated and accompanied with full explanations which show to the Christian the similarities of experience underlying the unfamiliar idiom.

TYPE AND HISTORY IN ACTS

M. D. Goulder

27s. 6d. net

Is the author of Luke/Acts an historian or a theologian? The Principal of the Union Theological College, Hongkong, suggests that an important clue to the Lucan method is typology, and he applies typological criticism to the Acts of the Apostles.

UNKNOWN SAYINGS OF JESUS

Joachim Jeremais

19s. 6d. net

This second and revised English edition incorporates some fresh material which Professor Jeremias has developed since the first edition appeared. Eighteen sayings are now discussed—sixteen of the original twenty-one, with two newly discovered additions.

CANTERBURY ESSAYS AND ADDRESSES

Michael Ramsay Archbishop of Canterbury

18s. net

'We hope that the Archbishop is forming the habit of allowing a wider constituency to share in the enjoyment of utterances prepared in the first place for a limited audience. . . . The impression left upon the reader is that there are certain things that matter eternally, that they are few in number and they can be simply expressed in language understood of the people of God.' THE INFLUENCE OF THE SYNAGOGUE UPON THE DIVINE OFFICE

C. W. DUGMORE

Published for the Alcuin Club. Collections No. 45

The reprint of a famous and standard work on the worship of the early Church, which emphasises the tremendous debt owed to Jewish liturgical forms. 30s.

THE ORTHODOX ETHOS

Edited by A. J. PHILIPPOU

This is the first volume of a new series, entitled Studies in Orthodoxy, and is in four sections—The Orthodox Faith, the Nature of Orthodox Devotion, Liturgical Art, and Orthodoxy and its Witness to the Secular Order. The writers show that Orthodox theology is not the repetition of old formulas, but a living enterprise, carried on in the presence of God and for the service of God and his people. 27s. 8d.

CHRISTIANITY AND THE VISUAL ARTS—Illustrated

Editor GILBERT COPE

The relationship between the Christian religion and the visual arts is constantly changing. Much of the symbolism is emphasised. What happens when ancient belief is presented visually in the idioms of today? 42s.

Jesus and Christian Origins

HUGH ANDERSON

'Dr Anderson, who is a professor at Duke University, North Carolina, has set out to give his readers a conducted tour through the intricacies of post-Bultmannian New Testament scholarship. . . . He is a well-informed guide, capable of explaining what the contemporary debate is about, of analysing the motives and the achievements of the theologians . . . and of assessing critically, and in general, fairly, the strength and weakness of their various points of view.'

The Revelation of St John the Divine

A Commentary on the English Text

AUSTIN FARRER

It is Dr Farrer's conviction that this book is a seamless whole. Into a text, consisting of his own correction of traditional English versions, he has woven a commentary aimed at making St John's thought intelligible to the English reader. 30s net

A Library of Protestant Thought

A Series devoted to the thought of the Churches of the Reformation in Europe and North America

John Wesley

EDITED BY ALBERT C. OUTLER

Professor Outler places Wesley in perspective against the background of Christian thought. Here is a selection of Wesley's writings that enables him to speak for himself on nearly every theological topic he regarded as important. 52s net

The Oxford Movement

EDITED BY EUGENE R. FAIRWEATHER

This volume introduces the main ideas and problems of the Movement, by reproducing a representative selection from the writings of six of its leading theologians—Newman, Keble, Ward, Pusey, Isaac Williams and R. I. Wilberforce. 50s net

'It would be difficult to overstate the value of these scholarly and compelling books, both for their intrinsic interest and for their importance in any ecumenical dialogue.' THE SCOTSMAN reviewing the above two volumes
