British Journal of Music Education

Volume 36  Number 2  July 2019

CONTENTS

Editorial
Martin Fautley and Alison Daubney: The place of composing in curriculum design 109

Articles
Almudena Ocaña-Fernández and Mª Luisa Reyes-López: ‘My Favorite Song’: understanding a music learning ecology of children from interaction among media, family and school contexts 113
Tine Grieg Vigs: ‘There is a shark coming, then there is a du-du-du-du-du...’: Mediating cultural tools in a Norwegian creative music-making project 125
Carrie McCarthy, Joanne O’Flaherty and Jean Downey: Choosing to study music: student attitudes towards the subject of music in second-level education in the Republic of Ireland 139
Christine Carroll: ‘I’lliterate’ musicians: an historic review of curriculum and practice for student popular musicians in Australian senior secondary classrooms 155
Jihe Shue: Experienced Korean primary teachers’ perceptions of their difficulties in music classes 173
Dawn Joseph: Fostering a happy positive learning environment for generalist pre-service teachers: building confidence that promotes wellbeing 183
Clint Randles and Leonard Tan: Measuring pre-service music teachers’ creative identities: a cross-cultural comparison of the United States and Singapore 197

Book Review
Claudia Nunes: Children’s Home Musical Experiences Across the World 211

Corrigendum
Martin Fautley and Alison Daubney: Some thoughts on curriculum in music education – CORRIGENDUM 217
The British Journal of Music Education (ISSN 0265-0517) is a fully refereed international journal which aims to provide clear, stimulating and readable accounts of contemporary research in music education worldwide, together with a section containing extended book reviews which further current debates. In particular, the journal strives to strengthen connections between research and practice, so enhancing professional development and improving practice within the field of music education. The range of subjects covers music teaching and learning in formal and informal contexts including classroom, individual, group and whole class instrumental and vocal teaching, music in higher education, international comparative music education, music in community settings, and teacher education. Contributors include researchers and practitioners from schools, colleges and universities. Where appropriate, we encourage authors to include supplementary sound files and other multimedia material. These accompany articles in electronic format on Cambridge Journals Online.

Peer review policy: Each manuscript is reviewed by at least two referees, and an editorial decision is generally reached within 8 to 12 weeks of submission.

BJIEM has been accepted for inclusion in the Thomson Reuters Arts & Humanities Citation Index and the Social Science Citation Index.

Instructions for authors
Detailed instructions for authors can be found on the BJIEM website (cambidge.org/bjme) and are also available on request from the Journal Administrator.

Contacting the Editorial Office
Contributions and subsequent correspondence should be sent to the Journal Administrator:
CORMAC LAMBE Email: bjme@cambridge.org

Questions regarding potential submissions or special issues should be addressed to the Editors:
MARTIN FAULLEY Email: martin.faulley@bcu.ac.uk

Books for review should be sent to the Book Reviews Editor:
ALLY DAUBNEY Email: alison.daubney@gmail.com

Articles should usually be around 5,000 words long, but shorter research notes or more substantial pieces will be considered where the subject matter warrants it. Authors should provide a word count at the end of each article. The author’s name should be given on a separate sheet (see note below) to facilitate the anonymous refereeing process.

An abstract of about 100 words summarising the content of the article, and three to five keywords, should be given immediately before the title and before the main text. A note giving details of any acknowledgements may also be included.

A biography of around 75 words giving the author’s name, affiliation, music education and major research interests, etc. should be submitted on a separate cover sheet. Full contact details should also be included on this sheet.

Please consult the detailed instructions for authors (see above) for more information on style and the formatting.

This journal issue has been printed on FSC-certified paper and cover board. FSC is an independent, non-governmental, not-for-profit organization established to promote the responsible management of the world’s forests. Please see www.fsc.org for information.

Printed in the United Kingdom by Bell & Bain Limited