

Chief of Staff

Twenty-five Years of the American Presidency
Edited by SAMUEL KERNELL & SAMUEL L. POPKIN

On January 17th and 18th of 1986 a symposium unique in the history of American politics took place at the University of California at San Diego. Eight former White House Chiefs of Staff, or their administrative equivalent, representing six different Presidential Administrations from Eisenhower to Carter, gathered together to talk about 25 years of the Presidency from their unique vantage point, and to answer questions from a panel of distinguished scholars and journalists. The result is a lively and candid debate that offers a rare insider's view of the American Presidency.

Henry Thoreau

A Life of the Mind

ROBERT D. RICHARDSON, Jr.

Designed and Illustrated by Barry Moser

The two years and two months that Thoreau spent at Walden Pond and the one night he spent in the Concord jail are among the most familiar features of the American intellectual landscape. In this new biography, based on a reexamination of Thoreau's manuscripts and on a retracing of his trips, Robert Richardson offers a remarkable view of Thoreau's life and his extraordinary achievement in their full nineteenth-century context.

Keeper of Concentration Camps

Dillon S. Myer and American Racism

RICHARD DRINNON

Here is a powerfully written account of the public career of Dillon S. Myer, who served as a director of the War Relocation Authority during World War II and then was rewarded with the post of Commissioner of the Bureau of Indian Affairs in 1950. Drinnon shows how Myer became a typical and acclaimed instrument of the mainstream conviction that non-whites had no rights the white man was bound to respect.

The Shaping of America

A Geographical Perspective on 500 Years of History
Volume I: Atlantic America, 1492-1800

D. W. Meinig

This entirely fresh interpretation of American history by a renowned historical geographer is the first in a projected three-volume series. Meinig here focuses on colonial America, examining how an immense diversity of ethnic and religious groups — Europeans, Africans, American Indians — ultimately created a set of distinct regional societies.

Writing the South

Ideas of an American Region

RICHARD GRAY

This book is a major reassessment of an American region and a regional consciousness. Concentrating on moments of crisis in Southern history, as well as on major literary figures, Richard Gray shows how generations of Southerners have been engaged in 'writing the South', in reinventing their place even as they describe it.

New England Literary Culture

From the Revolution to the Renaissance

LAWRENCE BUELL

This book is a study of the development of New England literature and literary institutions from the American Revolutionary era to the late nineteenth century. The topics covered include the Early National and Antebellum periods in New England writing; the importance of certain literary genres; the impact of Puritanism and its values; and the invention of acceptable conventions for portraying the New England landscape and institutions in literature.

Saint and Singer

Edward Taylor's Typology and the Poetics of Meditation

KAREN E. ROWE

This book focuses on the works of America's premier colonial poet, Edward Taylor (1642-1729). In a study which analyses typology in Taylor's Christography and Treatise Concerning the Lord's Supper, and draws on a collection of unpublished sermons, Professor Rowe advances a theory which unites Taylor's exegetical discipline as a preacher with his creativity as a poet.

The Fall into Eden

Literature and Imagination in California

DAVID WYATT

In this book David Wyatt examines the mythology of California as it is reflected in the literature of the region. He argues that in the West the energies which in other regions had been concentrated in covenant theology or the rationalisation of Southern history, are displaced into an encounter with landscape.

In Bad Faith: The Dynamics of Deception in Mark Twain's America
FORREST G. ROBINSON

From a close analysis of social dynamics as they are represented in Tom Sawyer, Robinson goes on to argue that Mark Twain's characters are engaged in an elaborate form of social play whose dominant feature is "bad faith". He stresses that this bad faith is more than just a theme with Twain – it is a key so understanding his works.

American Incarnation

MYRA JEHLLEN

Myra Jehlen gives us a complex and subtle reexamination of some of the central claims of the American liberal tradition. She starts with the proposition that the decisive factor which shaped the European settlers' idea of "America" or the "American" was material rather than conceptual – it was the physical fact of the land.

Hart Crane: the Contexts of The Bridge

PAUL GILES

In this analysis of Hart Crane's The Bridge Paul Giles shows that Crane was consciously constructing his poem out of a huge number of puns and paradoxes, most of which have until now never been noticed. In particular he investigates the extent of James Joyce's influence, Einstein and relativity, Freud and psychoanalysis, bootlegging, burlesque theatre and Hollywood cinema.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

- 1 All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to: The Editor, Journal of American Studies, School of English and American Studies, University of Sussex, Falmer, Brighton, BN1 9QN, England.
- 2 Articles should generally contain about 5,000 words. Longer or shorter articles, or articles in two or more parts, may be accepted by arrangement with the Editors.
- 3 Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, and is not being considered for publication elsewhere.
- 4 Contributions should be clearly typed in double spacing (including footnotes), preferably on A4 paper, with a wide left-hand margin. Diagrams, maps and illustrations may be included.
- 5 Spelling may conform either to British or American usage, providing it is consistent throughout.
- 6 Footnotes should be used sparingly: in general, to give sources of direct quotations, references to main authorities on disputable questions, and evidence relied on for a new or unusual conclusion. They should be numbered consecutively, and may most conveniently be placed, in double spacing, at the end of the article.
- 7 For guidance on matters of style, contributors should refer either to The Chicago Manual of Style (13th edition, 1982) or to the Journal of American Studies Style Notes, copies of which may be obtained from the Editors.
- 8 Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for correcting proofs.
- 9 Notes intended for the Editors or Printer should be on a separate sheet.
- 10 First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the Editor an address through which they can be reached without delay and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs to the Editor, by airmail where necessary, within three days of receiving them.
- 11 Corrections should be kept to an absolute minimum. They should be confined to errors of the typist or printer unless the Editor authorizes otherwise.
- 12 Contributors of articles and review essays receive 25 free offprints. Extra copies may be ordered according to a scale of charges.
- 13 Contributors need not be members of the British Association for American Studies. Unsolicited typescripts can only be returned to overseas contributors who send International Reply Coupons (not postage stamps).
- 14 Contributors of accepted articles will be asked to assign their copyright, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press, to help protect their material, particularly in the USA.

Books for review should be sent as follows: History, Political Science and Social Studies to Dr Michael Heale, Department of History, Furness College, University of Lancaster, Bailrigg, Lancaster LA1 4YG. Literature, the Fine Arts and other books to Professor Stephen Fender, School of English and American Studies, University of Sussex, Falmer, Brighton BN1 9QN.
