On the Cover: The cover photo, taken at the Utah State University (USU) Museum of Anthropology in spring 2010, shows co-editor and then museum director Bonnie Pitblado (seated), chatting with LeeAnn Hartner and Dann Russell. LeeAnn found the artifact Bonnie is holding when she was a young girl helping her grandfather dig potatoes in his Teton Valley, Idaho, field. Dann is an avocational archaeologist who documented and wrote about the event for a local archaeological society newsletter. This "Saturday at the USU Museum" invited private individuals to bring artifacts in their possession and to exchange knowledge of the finds with USU archaeology faculty and museum staff. Advertising emphasized that this was a knowledge-exchange, not one focused on the monetary value of artifacts. It led to around 200 visitors over the course of one Saturday in rural Logan, Utah. Faculty members used their expertise in chipped stone, ceramics, animal bone, and other materials to convey what observations they could with visitors, while student museum assistants took notes (this photo shows a notetaker's arm; she is busily jotting down what both LeeAnn and Bonnie say). Some of the discussions, including this one, led to site visits and sometimes to formal site documentation and additional research.

Advances in Archaeological Practice is a quarterly, full-color, digital journal devoted to sharing creative solutions to challenges in the practice of archaeology globally. The journal is available as a benefit of membership in the SAA or by subscription.
