

FC31-03

THERE IS NO PLACE FOR THEM

J.A. García<sup>1</sup>, A.S. Raya<sup>2</sup>, E.S. del Arco<sup>3</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Psychology, University of Valladolid (Spain), Valladolid, <sup>2</sup>Psychology, University of Córdoba(Spain), Córdoba, <sup>3</sup>Fundación CADAH, Cantabria (Spain), Santander, Spain

Presentation: The example of a real case with autism opens the eyes to us and denounces the current lack of centers and services as well as of certain treatments and programs personalized of psycho-social-health intervention.

Remarks:

- Its problems is promoted by the problematic ones of other interns
- Its problems is promoted in environments designed for persons with problems of social adaptation.
- The promotion of its problems increases the high place conduct, and the highest, risk for its life and that of the others
- The promotion of its problems increases the suffering
- The promotion of its problems increases the deployment of resources and social expense

Conclusions:

- They are not delinquents
- They are not in court order
- They do not come from the social services
- They do not have intellectual disability
- They have need for specializing professional attention

They have need for temporary income of average or long stay but THERE IS NO PLACE ADAPTED TO THEM