National Leadership and Foreign Policy

A Case Study in the Mobilization of Public Support

BY JAMES N. ROSENAU. Who are in foreign policy matters the "opinion-makers" in our society? What is the effect of their opinion-making potential on the legislative process? To what extent is it possible to influence their actions and feelings? These and other questions concern Professor Rosenau in this study of the attitudes toward the U.S. foreign aid program of over 600 Americans who had attended a White House-sponsored conference to hear noted speakers discuss our policy. July. 424 pages. $8.50

Peace-Making and the Settlement with Japan

BY FREDERICK S. DUNN. This analytical case study of American decision-making draws on all the insights gathered during the author's career as a legal officer in the State Department and as director of the Yale Institute of International Studies and of the Center of International Studies at Princeton. It traces the evolution of American policies regarding peace with Japan from the early years of World War II through the negotiations that culminated in the treaty signed at San Francisco in 1951. 210 pages. $5.00
