TREATY IMPLEMENTATION: SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL ADVICE ENTERS A NEW STAGE

by Lee A. Kimball

Study in Transnational Legal Policy, No. 28, 263 pages.
Published by the American Society of International Law.

This report reviews the development of scientific and technical information and analysis in a selection of international environmental conventions. It considers the contributions of scientific and technical analysis in two stages: before the 1972 Stockholm Conference and from Stockholm to the 1992 Rio Conference on Environment and Development.

The third and current stage of scientific and technical advice is characterized by explicit recognition of the need for socio-economic information and analysis as well as scientific and technical knowledge, and by growing recourse to collective analysis of these issues at the international level. This poses new challenges for convention advisory mechanisms and offers new opportunities to improve the availability of accurate, objective, reliable, and cost-effective advice.

The report explores these implications and then disaggregates six advisory functions as a basis for recommending different institutional options for advice. The institutional implications are particularly important today as the new global conventions shape the roles of their respective advisory bodies and iron out relationships with existing institutions, and as the international community considers major reforms in the post-war international institutions.

THE BEST IN LAW FROM CAMBRIDGE

Governing the Antarctic

The Effectiveness and Legitimacy of the Antarctic Treaty System

Olav Schram Stokke and Davor Vidas, Editors

This is a book about international cooperation in the Antarctic, written by political scientists and international lawyers. They examine whether the Antarctic Treaty System succeeds in helping solve major problems in the region, and they investigate its position in the wider international community. Areas covered include fisheries, the environment, tourism, mineral activities, the role of NGOs in Antarctic affairs, and the policy of neighboring countries toward the Antarctic.

East Timor and the International Community

Basic Documents

Heike Krieger, Editor

The long-running dispute over East Timor is an unresolved item on the agenda of the international community. It involves issues of self-determination, non-recognition, and human rights. This book reproduces the basic materials relating to the historical background of East Timor, to the circumstances of the Indonesian invasion and subsequent incorporation of East Timor, to the development of the dispute in the light of the international community's response to it, and, finally, to the 1995 judgment of the International Court of Justice in the case concerning East Timor between Portugal and Australia.

Fragmentation and the International Relations of Micro-States

Jorri Duursma

This is the first book to provide a thorough international legal account of the European micro-states. Drawing on many unpublished documents, it examines notions of self-determination and statehood in the context of international law and provides solutions for problems of secession. Drawing on many unpublished documents, she tackles the important questions of what constitutes a people with a right to self-determination, and who is allowed to secede from a state, developing a novel approach to statehood and fragmentation.

Principles of the Institutional Law of International Organizations

C.F. Amerasinghe

This book addresses the institutional aspect of the law of international organizations. Amerasinghe makes a full and detailed examination of many aspects of the law and their related problems. The primary object of the book is to discuss principles, but Amerasinghe also studies the law and practice of different organizations, using a rigorous analysis of the material alongside his functional examination of the law.

The Polar Regions and the Development of International Law

Donald R. Rothwell

This book deals with international law in Antarctica and the Arctic. It reviews how each region is managed by the individual legal regimes, and how the special international laws developed specifically to deal with polar problems (for instance, protection of the environment) have contributed to the development of international law.

THE JURISPRUDENCE OF THE IRAN-UNITED STATES CLAIMS TRIBUNAL

An Analysis of the Decisions of the Tribunal

Edited by GEORGE H. ALDRICH

After the Iranian revolution in 1979, the Iranian government seized the US Embassy and US assets in Iran, creating a rift between the US and Iran which led to the expulsion and expropriation of US property. The US retaliated by freezing all Iranian assets in America, including funds held in US banks. This book charts the work of the Iran-US Claims Tribunal, established in the wake of this breakdown of relations.

INTERNATIONAL ACTION AGAINST RACIAL DISCRIMINATION

MICHAEL BANTON

An introduction to the international law of racial discrimination, this book is the first to provide an inside account of how a United Nations human rights treaty body actually works. At the same time, it is an introduction to the international law of racial discrimination. The book focuses on the practical operation and implementation of the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, emphasizing throughout the relationship between law and politics.

Editorial Policy and Guidelines for Submission of Documents and Introductory Notes

Editorial Policy

International Legal Materials is a collection of current documents designed to provide up-to-date information to scholars, practicing lawyers, legal advisers to government agencies and corporations, national and international officials, and others concerned with the legal aspects of public and private international relations. These documents primarily consist of current materials not readily available in most libraries.

The term international law is interpreted broadly for the purposes of this publication. Some of the materials may be of a kind normally classified under other rubrics, such as foreign law, comparative law, conflict of laws, constitutional law, international organization, and the like. The main criterion of the Editorial Advisory Committee in selecting materials is that the documents be of substantial interest to a large number of legal scholars, practicing lawyers and officials dealing with public and private international matters. It is recognized that these interests may vary considerably among users of the publication in the United States and elsewhere.

International Legal Materials reproduces by photo-offset the official documents whenever possible. In some instances, the documents are reproduced from unofficial typescript when texts are unavailable or when a translation is given. A short "I.L.M. Background/Content Summary" precedes each document to assist in reviewing the materials. On occasion, "Introductory Notes" also accompany documents. The authors of such notes are identified.

Readers are invited to draw the Editor's attention to documents meriting reproduction in International Legal Materials.

Submission of Documents

Readers are invited to submit documents that would be of interest to the international legal community. International Legal Materials reproduces by photo-offset the official text of a document whenever possible; if the official version is not available in English, an unofficial translation is acceptable. The original language text must accompany unofficial English translations. The source of the document, e.g., a government department, a court, an embassy or an official gazette, should be clearly identified.

Submission of Introductory Notes

Readers are also invited to submit brief Introductory Notes to accompany documents in I.L.M. Introductory Notes are intended to provide background information for the document they accompany. They should be objective, without judgmental commentary. For example, Introductory Notes for treaties might include a short history of the negotiations, the dates of signature and entry into force; for legislation, its history and international significance; for judicial proceedings, the background of the case and a citation to the full text in the original language; for reports and other documents, background information as to the document's significance. If within the text of the document there are references to other documents, their relevance should be briefly explained in the Introductory Note.

Format

Introductory Notes should be between 750 and 1250 words in length. Both Introductory Notes and unofficial translations should be typed single-spaced with double-spacing between paragraphs. Authors and translators may send an additional copy of their submission on an IBM-compatible diskette. I.L.M. uses WordPerfect 5.1.

A statement giving the author's name, title, address, telephone and fax numbers must accompany all submissions.

Acceptance of Materials and Corrections

Submissions cannot be returned. Authors and translators will be notified of the acceptance of their Introductory Note or translation as soon as possible. Once a submission has been accepted for reproduction, the American Society of International Law will send the author or translator a Publication Agreement. Authors and translators will be acknowledged in I.L.M.

In some cases minor editorial or typographical alterations may be made without contacting author or translator. Major corrections will be sent to the author or translator for approval. Corrected Introductory Notes or translations should be returned as soon as possible.
