A REVIEW OF SCIENCE, LEARNING AND POLICY

Editor: EDWARD SHILS

Minerva, now in its twentieth year, deals with the fundamental social, economic, political and administrative problems of higher education and scientific research in their contemporary relevance and in an historical perspective. Since its inception, Minerva has come to be regarded as the leading international journal in the field of higher educational and science policy.

In addition to four long articles in each issue, Minerva also reprints reports and documents which are otherwise difficult of access, as well as review articles on important books and editorial comments on pressing current problems.

Politics and Society in Islamic Spain 1002-1086

David Wasserstein

"An outstanding presentation of the political and social dynamics of a medieval Islamic society!"

—Thomas F. Glick,
Boston University

Islamic Spain was the only territory conquered by the Arabs in the seventh and eighth centuries that did not remain a part of the Islamic world. David Wasserstein shows how it developed into a special sort of Islamic society, different both from other Islamic territories and from Spain itself. $35.00

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions may be descriptive, analytical or theoretical. Any article not in itself comparative may be accepted if it lends itself to comment that will place it in comparative perspective. Correspondence with the editors prior to the submission of articles will help to enable them to obtain such comment or a companion study. Emphasis in comparative studies may be either on similarities or, if these are significant enough and call for some recasting of generalizations, on differences. All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to the Editors, Comparative Studies in Society and History, Department of History, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48109.

Two copies of each contribution, preferably accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope, should be submitted. Both text and footnotes should be clearly typed with double spacing and wide margins; footnotes should appear on separate pages at the end of the article. Illustrations may be included by arrangement with the editors.
