Purpose in a World of Chance

A Biologist's View

W. H. Thorpe

Are we living in chaos? Or is there some point to the world and in our lives? Professor Thorpe claims that scientists, especially physicists and cosmologists, increasingly assume order and design in the universe, and he seeks to illustrate this in biology also, countering the theories of Jacques Monod. £3.95

The Way of Discovery

An Introduction to the Thought of Michael Polanyi

Richard Gelwick

In this introduction to the thought of the late Michael Polanyi, described as 'one of the greatest scientist-philosophers of our century', Professor Gelwick shows the religious, ethical, and social dimensions of his basic epistemology. Discovery is the organizing principle of Polanyi's world view and it is in this creative act that he found the contact with the divine. £9.80

The Poet and the Mystic

A Study of the Cántico espiritual of San Juan de la Cruz

Colin P. Thompson

St John of the Cross (1542–91) is one of the greatest lyrical poets and one of the most influential spiritual teachers Spain has ever produced. His most important poem was the Cántico espiritual, a large part of which was written after he was arrested in 1577 by unreformed members of his Order and placed in solitary confinement. This study of the poem is the most serious attempt so far made to analyse it critically and in depth, and also contributes to the history of Carmelite mysticism. £8.50 Oxford Modern Languages and Literature Monographs

Lanfranc of Bec

Margaret Gibson

This is an original and penetrating study of an outstanding figure of medieval life. Lanfranc's life (1005–89) fell into three main periods: first, as a teacher in northern Italy and France; then as a monk in Normandy; and finally as archbishop and statesman in Normandy. The book gives a new insight into Lanfranc as a scholar and pioneer commentator on the Pauline Epistles. £9.50

Religious Traditions

A New Journal in the Study of Religion

There are not so many journals promoting a study of religion that one more is too many. The discipline is too recent of arrival in our academies for that. This is especially so in Australia where the discipline is just beginning. Hence, an initial need for a forum for scholars in Religion, as distinct, say, from Theology or Philosophy, here in Australia, is plain to see – the need any academic community with definable boundaries of interest, even perhaps, of geography, has for a venue through which creative exchange may happen in print. No such forum or venue exists in Australia, and this Journal hopes in some measure to provide one.

Naturally, contributions from places other than this one will be encouraged, indeed, sought. There could be no other way to promote a more wide understanding of Religion in Australia, than this. The Journal, in other words, though meant in part to be the product of a need felt among Australian “religionists”, must, by dint of that very fact, take its place besides other International Journals in the field.

The title is indicative of a certain stress – the desire of the editors to provide a venue for a wider understanding of Religious knowledge, of, that is, the “truth” or “wisdom” Religions seek to convey. Many Journals pride themselves on their standard of scholarly excellence, and often, it would appear, on that alone. Our hope is, whilst sacrificing nothing of substance in scholarship, nonetheless to produce, indeed, promote something more – writings which, in being read, effectively stimulate insight. We express this hope to indicate our earnest policy of producing something that matters, and not yet another place for scholarly self-indulgence. We are concerned, in other words, not merely with knowledge of religion, but as much with religious knowledge.

The first few issues will be indicative of the approach of the Journal and will include papers by:

ERIC J. SHARPE

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

1. Contributions and books for review should be sent to the Editor, Professor H. D. Lewis, King's College, Strand, London, WC2R 2LS. Books published in America should be sent to Professor J. E. Smith, Department of Philosophy, Yale University, New Haven.
2. Articles submitted to the journal should in general be between 5,000 and 10,000 words long, though articles outside these limits will be acceptable if there is some good reason for their exceptional length or brevity. Articles in two or more parts may occasionally be accepted provided each part is independently intelligible. They should normally be in English.
3. Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, or is not being considered for publication elsewhere.
4. Contributions should be clearly typed in double spacing, preferably on A4 paper, with a wide left-hand margin. The typescript should be prepared to accord as closely as possible with the typographical conventions of the journal.
5. Footnotes should be used sparingly: in general, to give sources of direct quotations, references to main authorities on disputable questions, and evidence relied on for a new or unusual conclusion. They should be numbered in one sequence throughout the article, and should preferably be typed in double spacing at the end of the article.
6. Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for correcting proofs.
7. First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the Editor an address through which they can be reached without delay and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs to the Editor, by airmail where necessary, within ten days of receiving them.
8. Correction should be kept to an absolute minimum. It should be confined to errors of the typist or printer unless the Editor authorises otherwise.
9. All contributors of articles receive 50 free offprints. Reviewers will receive five or more offprints of their reviews.
10. If rejected manuscripts are to be returned, stamps or international coupons should be sent to cover postage, but it would normally be simpler just to retain a copy.
11. Contributors of accepted articles will be asked to assign their copyrights, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press, to help protect their material, particularly in the USA.
