Nutrition Research Reviews presents up-to-date, concise, critical reviews of key topics in nutritional science in order to advance new concepts and hypotheses. The journal encourages the exchange of fundamental ideas on nutritional well-being in both humans and animals.
The British Journal of Nutrition is an international, peer-reviewed journal publishing original papers, review articles, short communications and technical notes on human and clinical nutrition, animal nutrition and basic science as applied to nutrition. Correspondence is encouraged in a Nutrition Discussion Forum. The Journal recognizes the multidisciplinary nature of nutritional science and encourages the submission of material from all of the specialties involved in research and clinical practice. The Journal also publishes supplements on topics of particular interest.

Aims and Scope

The British Journal of Nutrition is an international, pre-reviewed journal publishing original papers, review articles, short communications and technical notes on human and clinical nutrition, animal nutrition and basic science as applied to nutrition. Correspondence is encouraged in a Nutrition Discussion Forum. The Journal recognizes the multidisciplinary nature of nutritional science and encourages the submission of material from all of the specialties involved in research and clinical practice. The Journal also publishes supplements on topics of particular interest.
