

NEWS AND NOTICES

It is with sincere regret that we announce the death, September 20, 1951, of Professor Horace S. Fries, Professor of Philosophy at the University of Wisconsin. Prof. Fries's contributions to philosophy of science, both in this journal and elsewhere, are well-known. His was the kind of mind that liked to see how philosophy of science works out in the actual activity of research. His participation in such areas as perception research and value research contributed much to their advancement.
