Transforming Metropolitan London, 1750–1960
Guest Editors: Frank Mort and Miles Ogborn

Transforming Metropolitan London, 1750–1960 1
Frank Mort and Miles Ogborn

Designs on the City: John Gwynn’s Plans for Georgian London 15
Miles Ogborn

Cleansing and Clarifying: Technology and Perception in Nineteenth-Century London 40
Christopher Otter

Animating the Everyday: London on Camera circa 1900 65
Lynda Nead

London of the Future: The Metropolis Reimagined after the Great War 91
David Gilbert

Fantasies of Metropolitan Life: Planning London in the 1940s 120
Frank Mort

Plates 1–20 153
The North American Conference of British Studies announces the merger of its two highly respected journals, Albion and the Journal of British Studies, into a new publication combining the strength and size of both. The resulting journal will be the world’s most comprehensive resource for scholarship and reviews in British studies. The NACBS Executive Committee invites applications for the positions of Editor and Reviews Editor of this exciting enterprise. Applicants should be members of NACBS who are accomplished scholars conversant across the traditional chronological and disciplinary boundaries of British Studies.

The Editor’s primary responsibility is soliciting manuscripts and overseeing submissions through the peer-review and editorial processes; the Review Editor will play a comparable role with reviews and/or review essays. The University of Chicago Press will manage all technical aspects of the journal’s production and will underwrite office expenses as well as stipends for graduate assistants. Appointments are for five years commencing January 1, 2005.

We encourage applications from both individuals and potential editorial teams. Interested scholars should send a current c.v. and statement of their vision for the journal’s development to the Chair of the Search Committee, Professor Linda Levy Peck, Department of History, George Washington University, Washington, D.C. 20052 or llpeck@gwu.edu. Deadline for applications is March 1, 2004.
The North American Conference on British Studies

The Journal of British Studies, founded in 1961, is published by the University of Chicago Press under the auspices of the North American Conference on British Studies (NACBS). It was the result of the imaginative generosity of the Trinity College alumnus, Frederick E. Hasler (Hon. LL.D. 1957), who contributed funds to the college for the specific purpose of establishing a learned periodical in the field of British history.

The North American Conference on British Studies is a scholarly society affiliated with the American Historical Association and open to anyone in the United States and Canada interested in British civilization in its several aspects: historical, archaeological, literary, artistic, political, and sociological. Its North American constituency comprises close to one thousand members drawn from the fifty states and ten provinces. Affiliated with the parent organization are six regional conferences (Northeastern, Middle Atlantic, South, Midwest, Western, and Pacific Coast), each having its own officers and programs and with a combined membership of more than two thousand. The Conference convenes at least once a year in the autumn, usually in joint session with one of its regional affiliates. It seeks to encourage the serious study of British history, literature, and politics, as well as allied subjects, and among the general reading public through meetings, book prizes, and association with like-minded organizations in North America and Britain and through its publications program.

The Conference sponsors a wide variety of publications. Another journal, Albion, issued four times a year at Appalachian State University, Boone, North Carolina, and sent to all members of the parent organization, includes articles, proceedings of all meetings, and book reviews. The Conference’s newsletter, the British Studies Intelligencer, is available online at http://www.SMCM.edu/BSI/ and contains notices of meetings devoted to British studies, news appointments, moves, and retirements and notes on current publications and research in progress. Other publications appear periodically and will be noted at such times.

Information about membership in the NACBS can be found on the copyright page of this journal.