The Fabric of Character

Aristotle's Theory of Virtue

NANCY SHERMAN

'a thoughtful and convincing study . . . an excellent contribution to scholarship on Aristotle's ethical theory, and one which . . . will be most helpful to students trying to get to grips with that theory' Classical Review

'Sherman's excellent book explores the complex of issues raised by Aristotle's conception of character: choice, practical reasoning, emotion, commitment and habituation. The book is accessible and interesting to the non-specialist, and specialists will learn much from it.'

Aristotle's Two Systems

DANIEL W. GRAHAM

'What is new—and what makes Aristotle's Two Systems so exciting—is the way in which Graham has constructed a comprehensive physiognomy of the two metaphysical systems, and the extremely powerful set of exegetical arguments upon which he bases his account of Aristotle's handling of them.'

Times Literary Supplement

Plato's Theaetetus

DAVID BOSTOCK

'an excellent book: simply the best and most up-to-date full-length treatment of this central philosophical work'

Times Literary Supplement

'David Bostock's analysis of the argument of the dialogue and the issues it raises . . . does ample justice to its complexity and depth.'

Aristotle's First Principles

TERENCE IRWIN

'Undoubtedly a major work—scholarly, learned, detailed . . . Irwin's book will certainly be something for Aristotelians to discuss for a long time.'

Times Higher Education Supplement

'T. H. Irwin's rich book . . . is vastly learned . . . The argument is always based on a scholarly perusal of the texts; and it is usually presented with philosophical subtlety and precision.'

HELIOS

A JOURNAL DEVOTED TO CRITICAL AND METHODOLOGICAL STUDIES OF CLASSICAL CULTURE,
LITERATURE, AND SOCIETY

Edited by Steven M. Oberhelman

HELIOS publishes articles and in-depth reviews of books on topics in literary criticism, comparative literature, women in antiquity, and the social and cultural history of the Greco-Roman world. The articles reflect a diverse range of contemporary critical methodologies, such as anthropological, feminist, deconstructive, reader-response, and poststructuralist. Books that exemplify innovative approaches to ancient culture are treated thoroughly in long reviews and review articles. HELIOS is issued in two numbers (spring and autumn) per volume.

Recent and forthcoming thematic issues include:

Studies in Greco-Roman Religion
Rescuing Creusa: New Methodological Approaches to the Study of Women in Antiquity
Latinitas: The Tradition and Teaching of Latin
New Approaches to Roman Women (two issues)
René Girard and Western Literature
