

The Encyclopaedia of Islam (New Edition)

Prepared by a Number of Leading Orientalists under the Patronage of the International Union of Academies

The Encyclopaedia of Islam (New Edition) sets out the present state of our knowledge of the Islamic World. It is a unique and invaluable reference tool, an essential key to understanding the world of Islam, and the authoritative source not only for the religion, but also for the believers and the countries in which they live.

It embraces articles on distinguished Muslims of every age and land, on tribes and dynasties, on the crafts and sciences, on political and religious institutions, on the geography, ethnography, flora and fauna of the various countries and on the history, topography and monuments of the major towns and cities.

The New Edition is published in double fascicules of 128 pages. Eight to ten double fascicules make up one volume. Upon completion of a volume, covers and prelims are supplied for binding (for subscribers). Volume 8 is due early 1995. Fourteen volumes (including indexes and supplements) are planned in total.

Two Kings in Arabia

Sir Reader Bullard's Letters from Jeddah

Edited by E. C. Hodgkin • Foreword by Sir Michael Weir

Sir Reader Bullard while a member of the Levant Consular Service enjoyed two spells of duty in Arabia, first as consul in Jeddah 1923–5 and then as minister there from 1936–9. He thus saw the last years of King Hussein of the Hejaz and some of the great days of King Abdul Aziz Ibn Saud.

His mordant, frank and humorous letters home to England provide an unforgettable picture of the emerging Saudi Arabia.

'These are absorbing letters, shrewd and humane.' The Guardian, August 1993
1993; 289pp; 235 x 155 mm; Cased £30.00; ISBN 0 86372 167 2

Russian Ships in the Gulf

1899–1903

Efim Rezvan • Edited by Vitaly Naumkin

Using previously unpublished material this book examines how the common interests of Russia and the Arab World were served by the sending of Russian warships to the Gulf in the period from 1899–1903.

1993; 165pp; 235 x 155 mm; Cased £35.00; ISBN 0 86372 155 9

Russian Policy in the Middle East

from Messianism to Pragmatism

Alexei Vassiliev

An informative account of Soviet foreign policy in the Middle East from the 1917 Revolution to the present describing how, because of changing domestic and external factors, the Messianic ideals of an inflexible leadership and a ponderous system were eventually overtaken by a more realistic approach to policy.

1993; 384pp; 235 x 155 mm; Cased £35.00; ISBN 0 86372 168 0

Water Resources Development in Ethiopia

Zewdie Abate

Known for its devastating droughts, Ethiopia in fact receives 110 billion m³ of fresh water each year. However only 4.5% remains within the country's borders. Dr Abate explores the current state of water development and interrelated issues and then tackles the policy reforms required to meet current and future needs.

1993; 286pp; 235 x 155 mm; Cased £30.00; ISBN 0 86372 169 9

State, Religion and Society

in Central Asia

Edited by Vitaly Naumkin

This collection of thirteen essays is by prominent Oriental Studies experts from the former Soviet Union. They compare aspects of the Central Asian republics with their neighbours in the Middle East and Asia who were not subject to Soviet rule. They discuss how the Soviet system has hindered development and how this will affect these countries' transition in the aftermath of the Soviet experience.
