The Nutrition Society has as its object the advancement of the scientific study of nutrition and its application to the maintenance of human and animal health.

Application for membership is invited from anyone whose work has contributed to the scientific knowledge of nutrition, whether such work has been in the laboratory, the field or the clinic, and whether experimental, clinical, agricultural or statistical in nature. There is also a student membership scheme with reduced subscriptions.

Particulars of The Nutrition Society and application forms for membership may be had from the Honorary Secretary, Dr. J. C. Mathers, The Nutrition Society, 10 Cambridge Court, 210 Shepherds Bush Road, London W6 7NJ.

The Proceedings of The Nutrition Society, published by Cambridge University Press, in part record meetings of the Symposium type, at which experts in a particular field are invited by Council to make contributions on specific parts of it and at which general discussion follows these invited contributions. The meetings also include sessions at which papers are communicated by members and others on original work. It is proposed at present to publish summaries of the papers read at each meeting, each communication being recorded in the Society's Proceedings by means of an abstract not exceeding in length 400 words or the equivalent space in print. The Proceedings are published three times a year.

The British Journal of Nutrition is published by Cambridge University Press for The Nutrition Society, which owns it and controls its publication. It is devoted to reports of original work in all branches of nutrition, the term 'original work' not implying that the papers must invariably be based on new facts. The British Journal of Nutrition does not print reviews of the literature or polemical articles, but the Editorial Board is willing to consider original articles critically re-examining published information and the conclusions drawn from it. A volume consists of six parts: two volumes are published each year.

Nutrition Research Reviews, published annually by Cambridge University Press, presents authoritative and critical reviews of research that advance new concepts and encourage fresh thinking on a variety of nutritional problems. The journal's main objective is to encourage the exchange of fundamental ideas on nutritional well-being.
